League Council At Grips With Manchurian Issue

At Geneva Japan Rejects Plans of Lytton Commission

Spokesman, Addressing League, Asks Western World Display Patience Until Tokio Can Prove Its Policy of Peace For Far East

FORMAL REPLY OF CHINA AWAITED

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 21.—Defending Japan's course in Manchuria at the bar of the League of Nations Council, Yosuke Matsuoka to-day rejected the findings of the Lytton Commission and pleaded for the patience of the western world until his country could prove its policy of peace in the Far East.

His address was similar to the official "observations" published yesterday as Japan's answer to the Lytton commission's report, but he finished with a conciliatory appeal which is not to be found in previous Japanese utterances on the conflict with China.

He cited the United States punitive expedition of 1916 in Mexico as a fair precedent for Japan's attack "in legitimate self-defence" on Mukden in September, 1931.

DECLARED NOT VIOLATED

"We have violated neither the covenant of the League, nor the Nine-Power Treaty, nor the Pact of Paris," he said. "I ask of the council a little patience. If the Western world will bestow on us a fraction of the tolerance it has so generously bestowed on China, it will be gratefully received.

"The policy, the hope, the determination of my country is the maintenance of peace. We want no war, we want no more territory, we are not aggressors. Deeply and earnestly we desire the welfare of our great neighbor."

He spoke in English to a distinguished audience, including Lord Lytton of Great Britain, the chairman, and the other four members of the Lytton commission.

VALERA PRESIDES

The council members assembled late in the forenoon, and at the outset President Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish Free State, thanked the Lytton commission for the "excellent manner in which they carried out their functions."

M. Matsuoka thanked the commission for its arduous labors. He said conditions in China had changed

JOHN ROWLAND OUT OF DANGER

Fighting with as much courage as he ever showed in his sensational career as a rugby player, Johnny Rowland, 939 Pandora Avenue, one of the finest and most popular forwards in Canada, who sustained injuries to his neck and concussion in the rugby game at the Willows on Saturday, had won his battle for life to-day. Dr. H. E. Ridewood, attending the case with Dr. F. M. Bryant at the St. Joseph's Hospital, announced he was out of actual danger of dying. His condition, which showed a slight improvement yesterday, was better to-day.

Dr. Ridewood stated he was suffering from concussion and an injury to the neck. The extent of the neck injury is being determined from X-ray photographs.

When he was carried from the game it was thought he was suffering from a minor accident. It was not until he reached the hospital the seriousness of his condition was revealed. On Saturday night reports of his injury cast gloom over Victoria's sporting fraternity. It was feared he would not recover.

SHOWED IMPROVEMENT

Throughout the critical period Saturday night he failed to regain full consciousness but revived Sunday morning. His fate still hung in the balance throughout the day but this morning he was reported slightly better.

Although past the critical stage, his condition is still very serious. Fears that he might be crippled if he re-

LITTLE CUTTING IN LEGISLATURE

Latest Report Says Redistribution Calls For House of at Least Forty-two Members

Considerable Speculation on Plan Lougheed and Hinchliffe Are Preparing

Political observers of both parties are speculating as to the lineup of the redistribution map now being prepared by H. N. S. Lougheed and Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe. It will be introduced at the next session in keeping with the promise made by Premier Tolmie when he announced his Union Government proposal.

The Kidd committee recomended a House membership of twenty-eight with two members representing each federal electoral division, but it is reported but two maps will be given serious consideration—one providing for forty-two seats and the other for forty-eight.

Those who contend a smaller House than forty-two members is unworkable and would not give proper representation to remote sections of the province, say that starting in 1871 with a population of 36,247 people, of whom about 10,000 were whites, the others being native Indians and Chinese, the Legislative Assembly consisted of twenty-five members, or, roughly, one member for every 1,000 white inhabitants.

The first cabinet consited of five members. In 1900 the Department of Mines was separated from other portfolios, with a minister of its own. At this time the population had increased to approximately 185,000, with a House membership of thirty-six. In 1908 the Departments of Land and Works were

PLENTY OF COPPERS FOR CHRISTMAS

Retail merchants who were inconvenienced in the Christmas trade last year by a shortage of copper coins will not be subjected to the same trouble this year. Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, gave notice this morning that the mint was shipping out a large quantity of coppers to the British Columbia coast in time to take care of the Christmas demand.

SECOND BANKER IS EXTRADITED

Defence Counsel Says Habeas Corpus Appeal Unlikely; Cases Long Drawn Out

After a trial which has been going on here for weeks, Judge Lampman ordered the extradition from Canada to the United States of Ralph Walters, banker, to face federal charges of grand larceny in connection with the affairs of four Washington state banks and the Bankers' Holding Corporation. Walters is the son of Charles E. Walters, another banker, whose extradition on similar charges was ordered by the court here a month ago and who has been removed to Oakalla jail following the failure of his habeas corpus appeal in the Supreme Court here last week.

Ralph Walters has the right under the extradition laws to be held for two weeks before being sent to the United States, so as to have a chance to make a habeas corpus appeal. Stuart Henderson, his counsel, who had also been counsel all the way through for the elder Walters, said at the conclusion of the case to-day that it was unlikely because of financial reasons, that the younger Walters would be able to carry further his fight against returning to the United States.

In his final appeal to the judge to set the younger Walters free instead of forcing him to return to the United States, Mr. Henderson to-day spoke for two hours. He asserted that if there were any proper charge of false pretences it had not been allocated to the proper parties.

Prosecutor C. L. Harrison, who is acting for the State of Washington, addressed the court for fifteen minutes.

The judge in his ruling said he did not have to try the case, only to decide whether there was a case for Walters to meet. He decided there was and therefore ordered the extradition.

The cases of the two Walters have been before the courts here since Labor Day, when they were taken into custody by Victoria police. Since then they have been held at the Victoria police headquarters.

HINDENBURG FIXES TERMS WHICH MAKE SUCCESS OF NAZI LEADER DOUBTFUL

Hitler Has Limited Time to Discover If He Can Arrange Working Group in German Reichstag and Report to President

PROGRAMME OF ACTION ASKED

National Socialists in Crowd Cheer Leader as He Arrives at and Departs From President's Office

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Berlin, Nov. 21.—Adolf Hitler, who has been campaigning nine years to head the German government, finally received a mandate to form a cabinet to-day.

But President Paul von Hindenburg attached to the request certain political conditions which some observers thought, would make Hitler's acceptance improbable.

Instead of a mandate in the usual open form, President von Hindenburg gave the leader of the nation's largest single party a mission to attempt within a certain limited time to submit a slate of names and a programme of action, backed by a "majority or almost a majority" of the Reichstag.

The President was represented by those close to him as unwilling to place Germany's fate in Hitler's hands without attaching strings to the situation, despite the favorable meeting between the two most favorable leaders of the nation last Saturday.

TALKED TO-DAY

This was the outcome of a fifteen-minute conversation betwen them this forenoon, during which the Nazi leader declared himself ready to act. It was said he had promised to send a letter to the President to-day advising him "whether and under what conditions a government led by Hitler will find in the Reichstag a safe majority doing work and united on a common programme of effort."

In other words, Hindenburg gave the Nazi leader a chance, but a chance that leading political groups held to be nearly impossible to turn to certainty.

It was pointed out the pivotal parties—the Nationalists, the Centrists and the Bavarians—are possibly willing to have the Nazis govern Germany, but not willing to have the Nazi leader dominate the situation.

NO OTHER LEADER

A government communique said Hitler would notify the President of his course immediately, and added: "Herr Hitler was commissioned in the capacity of leader of the largest party in the Reichstag after he had declared most emphatically to the President of the Reich that his party could co-operate only in a government led by himself."

NOT BEGGING

APPEAL UPON ACTUAL VALUE

City Assessment Issue Too Important For Single Judge's Opinion

City Wins Move For Complete Review of St. Louis College Cut

What does the law of British Columbia mean when it says in section 212 of the Municipal Act that property assessments for taxation shall be at "actual value"?

This is to be settled by five judges in the B.C. Court of Appeal as a result of the order drawn to-day by Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald of the Supreme Court in the appeal of the Bishop of Victoria against the city's assessment of $50,000 on the St. Louis parochial school.

The actual wording of the judge's decision of last week cutting the assessment in half, came up for settlement to-day. H. A. Maclean, K.C., counsel for the city, asked that it should be clearly stated in the order signed by the judge that a question of law was involved so there would be no doubt about the right of the city to have a hearing before the Court of Appeal.

Mr. Maclean said the order on which the appeal was based should read to the effect that the judge's interpretation of "actual value" should read as "the sum which can be realized from the property from a forced sale."

The judge suggested that instead of "forced" sale, the expression "sale at the present time" might be used.

"But they paid $58,000 for the school new and how could you take such a loss cutting it down to $25,000 a short

Attempt Made To Derail Train of Premier of France

Track at Ingrandes Dynamited, But Action of Guards Enables Premier and Party to Reach Nantes Safely; International Ramifications Suspected

Special to The Times

Nantes, France, Nov. 21—Premier Édouard Herriot and a large official party escaped possible death early yesterday at Ingrandes, fifteen miles from here, when the railroad track over which their special train was to pass, was dynamited.

Track guards heard two explosions and rushed to the scene, stopping the Premier's train and avoiding a possible catastrophe.

M. Herriot and his party were on their way to Nantes for the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the union of France and Brittany. Unruffled by the incident, the Premier made his public appearances as scheduled.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIR

Police to-day had not established responsibility for the crime, but Premier Herriot stated he believed the criminals had international political affiliations.

The Canadian dollar finished at 86⅝ cents in United States funds, a decline of ⅝ of one per cent compared with the previous close. The Dominion's currency was quoted at 86 1-16 at noon.

The pound sterling suffered a larger setback, closing at $3.27¼, off 1¾ cents compared with Saturday's final quotation. Sterling opened off 1¼ cents at $3.27¾, but held steady until near the close.

How To Pay Cost of Survey Is Problem

People of Burnaby Also Find It Is Not Clear What Municipal Branches Expert Is to Investigate

Canadian Press

Edmonds, B.C., Nov. 21.—Burnaby citizens are asking just which branches of municipal administration are to be investigated by Dr. Horace L. Brittain, managing director of the Bureau of Municipal Research and Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, who opened an investigation and survey a week ago.

On January 16 electors by a large majority voted in favor of: "An investigation and survey by an efficiency expert into the municipal organization and report to the council."

A few weeks ago the council, despite queries from Councillors L. Lambert, chairman of finance, and J. Wheatley, how an expert could be paid in the present state of the municipal finances, decided to engage Dr. Brittain at a fee of $800, plus $320 expenses. They said, in effect, "The people of Burnaby voted for a survey and it is up to the council to carry out their wishes."

FLIER IS SAFE ON LONG HOP

Out of Touch With World For Time on Capetown-England Trip

Capetown, Nov. 21.—Victor Smith, youthful flier missing for some days on a flight from the Cape to England, arrived safely at Gao, French West Africa, it was reported here to-day.

Only nineteen years of age, the aviator had not been heard of since he left Duala November 15, at which time Amy Johnson, world's premier woman flier, was passing that same district traveling south on what proved to be her record-breaking England-Capetown flight.

Reports from Gao to-day stated Smith landed at Doi, 150 miles southwest of Gao, on the upper Volta, and was unable to communicate with outside world. He continued to Gao today.

INSURGENCY IN MANCHURIA GROWS

Associated Press

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 21.—The Japanese position in northwestern Manchuria was becoming increasingly difficult to-day with roughly one-fourth of the whole of the new state of Manchukuo in the hands of insurgent Chinese.

General Su Ping-wen, formerly a member of the new Manchukuo regime, revolted recently and with the help of some 30,000 other Chinese irregulars took a vast area that lies against the Soviet border.

Two hundred and forty-five Japanese captives, still held hostage by the general, were declared in danger of their lives, but nevertheless the Japanese army was pouring reinforcements into the bleak northern area, preparing to attack General Su's forces.

Mine Amalgamation Plan For Scotland

Canadian Press

London, Nov. 21.—The coal mines reorganization commission to-day made public an appeal to all mine owners in the County of Fife, Scotland, to amalgamate their concerns.

The proposal would affect eleven different firms producing a total of 7,000,000 tons of coal annually.

The commission, which was set up under the Coal Mines Act of 1930, said the step recommended in Fife marked the beginning of a new stage of its work.

AMY LOANS HER AIRPLANE

Mrs. Mollison Will Not Attempt Capetown-England Speed Flight

Canadian Press

Capetown, South Africa, Nov. 21.—Amy Johnson has abandoned the idea of flying back to England in an attempt to set a round-trip record.

Instead, she loaned her plane, the "Desert Cloud," to aid in the search for Victor Smith, nineteen-year old South African flier, unreported since he left Duala November 15 on his projected flight from the Cape to England.

(Later to-day messages to Capetiwn said Smith had arrived safely at Gao, French West Africa).

G. STORE IS PILOT

When the "Desert Cloud," the machine in which the world's premier woman flier broke the England-to-Capetown record of her husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison by nearly ten and a half hours, left here for the Cameroons to-day it was piloted by Gordon Store, who was co-holder of the England-to-Capetown record with Peggy Salaman when they completed their journey in November, 1931.

Parliament Recess May Start This Week

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—With the "Empire trade" sitting of Parliament drawing to a close members of the Commons to-day settled down to another stretch of the struggle over ratification of the Canada-United Kingdom trade treaty. All the tariff changes involved have already been approved, but some thirteen articles of the treaty have to be passed on before the ratifying bill is reported out of committee and given third reading.

Prospects are considered good for an adjournment of Parliament before the end of this week. Unless extended debate develops on some question apart from the treaty the work of the House should be completed before Friday.

The date for the reassembly of the members is tentatively set for January 30.

Examination of the railway legislation continues before the Senate railway committee. The bill is designed to implement the findings of the Royal Commission on Transportation.

The compulsory arbitration clauses of the bill promise to be highly contentious owing to the vigorous opposition expressed by E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, last week and the varied views of members of the committee. The bill would require the two railway systems to submit any point of dispute to an arbitral tribunal of three men which would have power to make orders respecting joint use of facilities, co-operation in effecting economies and other matters.

Judge Criticizes Minister's Course

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—Statement by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, federal Minister of Justice, that he was required to order the judicial commission under the Judges' Act to inquire into charges preferred against Judge L. St. G. Stubbs, was termed "passing the buck" by the county court judge in a letter dispatched to the federal minister.

Charging Hon. W. J. Major, K.C., Attorney-General of Manitoba, with persecution, Judge Stubbs inquired in his latest letter: "Is the Minister of Justice so subordinated and subservient to an Attorney-General that he has no discretion, no judgment, no responsibility of his own, but must simply do as he is told?"

covered were partially dispelled by Dr. J. H. Moore, called in for consultation on the case yesterday.

During the period of his unconsciousness Rowland failed to show any movement in his limbs. But yesterday he moved his arms and legs slightly. Dr. Moore stated he believed that to show the spinal cord had not been broken and that general paralysis had been avoided.

Of the many visitors who tried to see him yesterday, Campbell Forbes, vice-captain of the Canadian Scottish, and a team-mate of Johnny on the All-Canadian English rugby team which toured Japan last year, was able to talk with him for a short time.

RETAINED SPIRIT

With the characteristic sporting spirit that has marked his career in athletics, Rowland greeted Forbes with the words, "Too bad we lost."

Friends of Rowland's are requested not to attempt to visit him at present. His condition is such that quiet will be far more beneficial than the talk of well-wishers.

Johnny's father to-day asked The Times to announce the accident was not attributable to any rough or unfair play on the part of the members of the James Bay Athletic Association team whom the Scottish were opposing. It was an accident, Mr. Rowland said, which might have occurred in any sport. The Bays had played a perfectly fair game he said.

The mishap occurred in the second half of the game at the Willows. Bill Murray, J.B.A.A. half-back, was carrying the ball near the side-lines towards the Scottish territory. Bill Boorman, Scottish fullback, came out to tackle him. He stopped Murray about a yard from the line.

Rowland, racing across the field, hit the pair, knocking both into touch. Murray and Boorman, who suffered a painful leg injury in the tackle, rose from the ground, but Rowland lay still. The usual methods were used in an attempt to revive him, but when he failed to respond he was rushed to the hospital.

RECOGNIZED THROUGHOUT CANADA

Rowland was considered one of the finest forward players in Canada. Just twenty-one this year, he has played Victoria McKechnie Cup rugby for several seasons after graduating from the South Park School, where he learned the game. A member of the Scottish since his entry in the senior ranks he proved a tower of strength to them both as an attacking and defensive player. During the Japanese tour he was frequently mentioned in dispatches as one of the outstanding men on the field.

PROBLEMS FOR BRITISH M.P.'S

Parliament Will Reassemble To-morrow After Four-day Recess

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 21.—With the pomp and ceremony which dates back to this country's early history, King George will open the second session of the Eighth Parliament of his reign to-morrow.

The members will return to the chambers after only a four-day holiday. Parliament prorogued Thursday, November 17, after a weighty session which had seen the abandonment of at least two major policies which had hitherto been the warp and woof of British political history—the adherence to the gold standard and the principle of free trade.

Having passed legislation to ratify the agreements of the Ottawa Imperial Conference, Parliament now has its decks cleared for action on the question of unemployment.

MEANS TEST

The Speech from the Throne to-morrow will undoubtedly contain references to the vexed "means test" and its accompanying measures for relief of unemployment. Land settlement is expected to be a major issue to be dealt with, while there are signs the pig industry will be the object of parliamentary bills with a view to reorganizing the home industry and increasing its production. The question of rental rates and the possible restriction of grants to local bodies will also be aired in the House, with possible legislation following.

Parliament is to be faced with a dole fund debt of nearly half a billion dollars. The debt represents a net excess of expenditure on unemployment insurance over its revenue between July, 1921, and March, 1932.

It is understood the government intends to bring down legislation which will place the whole complex scheme of unemployment insurance on a sounder and more ordered basis.

IRISH PROBLEM

Parliament will also face a major issue in the form of the Irish Free State situation. Conditions resulting from the Free State's refusal to pay the land annuities to the United Kingdom have found tariff walls built between the two countries sufficient to cripple their mutual trade and observers comment that some step one way or another must be the outcome in the near future if more serious thouble is to be avoided.

"I'M CRAZY" SAYS GUNMAN

Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 21.—From the lips of a seventeen-year old boy came a confession, police said to-day, that he had slain several persons and that he was responsible for a series of other crimes, including the recent abduction of Miss Lillian Henry, twenty, niece of Deputy Police Commissioner John Alcock.

He was James (Iggy) Varecha, who told the police, they said, that he was "crazy."

"If you pin these crimes on me," he said, "I'll say I'm crazy. You'll never get me for this. I've been sent to Dixon twice and you can't get around that."

The Dixon he referred to is a state institution for mental defectives at Dixon, Ill., from which he escaped last August.

After making his confession yesterday evening, the youth calmly smoked a cigarette and then went to sleep in his cell.

SIGNS CONFESSION

To a confession of three of the crimes, authorities said, the youth signed his name—the slaying of Frank Jordan last Wednesday night; the abduction and attack the same night on Miss Henry and the shooting November 14 of James F. McElligot during an attempted holdup.

Varecha boastfully confessed, Alcock said, how he had shot Jordah, former municipal court bailiff and widowed father of a twelve-year old boy, as he leaped from his parked automobile to defend his companion, Miss Emma Dahnke.

"Then I ran away," Varecha said, "and went for about seven blocks. I found the Henry girl there in a car with a man."

Miss Henry's escort, James Gulsinger, was forced into the rumble seat at the point of a pistol.

"I drove Gulsinger toward his home and let him off," Varecha said. "I kept the girl with me."

VERBAL CONFESSIONS

Witnesses identified Varecha as the perpetrator of the crimes. He made verbal confessions to others, police said, including a score of robberies, the fatal shooting of an old man on the southwest side and the slaying of a Mexican in his home neighborhood.

He disliked Mexicans, Varecha told police, so he shot them. He had shot perhaps seven of them, he recalled.

Police are checking the confessed acts.

Cool, defiant, frequently surly, Varecha finally confessed under what Alcock termed "fourth degree" technique. His questioners said they appealed to his delusions of grandeur.

CAPTURED IN THEATRE

Several authorities also expressed doubt Varecha was insane.

Varecha's capture came in a downtown theatre Saturday when "the youth tried to buy a revolver from a negro. The negro recognized him from descriptions published. There had been an intensive manhunt.

Assistant State Attorney Walker Butler said the case would be given to the grand jury to-day and that indictments on charges of murder, assault to murder, robbery, attack and attempted attack would be sought.

"The prisoner says he is but seventeen, but I have reason to believe he is much older," Walker said.

HARPELL CASE ARGUED TO-DAY

Canadian Press

Montreal, Nov. 21.—A demurrer to the special plea of J. J. Harpell, publisher, in the criminal libel action taken by T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, against Harpell, was presented by counsel for the plaintiff before Chief Justice R. A. E. Greenshields in the Court of King's Bench here to-day.

Court was adjourned until to-morrow afternoon in order that counsel for Mr. Harpell might study the demurrer and prepare his argument against it.

Fifteen sections of the defendant's special plea were indicated in the demurrer by their reference numbers and letters, indicating objection was taken to these sections as being "not sufficient in law, and that the prosecutor is not bound by the law of the land to answer the same."

MAN FAILS TO RECOGNIZE WIFE

Col. R. Robins in North Carolina Unable to Break Down Amnesia Barrier

Associated Press

Asheville, N.C., Nov. 21.—Regarding the interruption of his secluded life in the mountains as a "monstrous error," Colonel Raymond Robins was in a sanitarium here to-day, where physicians hoped rest and quiet would reopen to him his life before last September.

The wife of the famous dry crusader had visited him twice, but each time he had failed to recognize her.

"He feels we have made a tragic mistake in identification," said John Dreir, a nephew, who recognized his uncle last Friday. Robins had been prospecting in the mountains of western North Carolina virtually since his disappearance September 3.

"However, he has resigned himself to the situation," Dreir continued, "believing apparently he may soon convince his friends and Mrs. Robins that he is not Colonel Robins and be free again to assume the peaceful life at Whittier he learned to love so well."

FOUND FRIDAY

His face covered with a shaggy beard and wearing dirty overalls and heavy boots Colonel Robins was found Friday at Whittier, a small village almost hidden away in the great Smoky Mountains of western North Carolina.

On September 3 he had suddenly dropped out of sight after starting to keep an engagement with President Hoover.

Physicians have not been able to give members of the family any hope he will regain his lost memory at an early date.

NO TESTIMONY FROM SISTERS

Two Nova Scotians Refuse at Sister's Hearing on Charge of Murder

Canadian Press

New Glasgow, N.S., Nov. 21.—Matilda King and Sadie King refused to testify to-day at the preliminary hearing of their sister Josephine, who is charged with murdering her two-days-old infant on July 25, last.

Magistrate D. C. Sinclair adjourned the hearing pending instructions from Attorney-General John Doull, and intimated the girls would be charged with contempt of court if they refused to give evidence next Wednesday.

Josephine, unmarried, was arrested November 5, after Sadie and Matilda had been acquitted of charges of killing the child. Following acquittal, the two girls were found guilty on concealment of birth and sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary.

Testifying in their own defence at their trials, they declared the baby was dead when they took it from Josephine's rooming-house in New Glasgow and hid it in the woods where the body was found later by police.

Rails in both directions at Ingrandes were blasted. The explosions took place more than an hour before the Premier's train was due. Police were inclined to believe an erroneous schedule of the Premier's train published in Nantes newspapers had fooled the criminals.

Traffic on the right of way was immediately stopped and repair gangs were rushed to the scene. The special train was stopped some distance away and the Premier, who was asleep, was unaware of the reason for the delay until after he had reached Nantes.

RED LANTERNS FOUND

Vague threats reached official ears recently that a train was to be blown up, but police investigators yesterday evening were baffled by discovery of red warning lanterns at considerable distance either side of the break in the tracks. This led some investigators to the belief the affair had been staged by Breton Autonomists who were more interested in attracting attention to themselves than they were in threatening the life of the Premier.

Premier Herriot received many congratulations on his escape.

In his address at the unveiling of the plaque here commemorating the union of Brittany with France, M. Herriot pledged himself to continue the work of conciliation among peoples begun by the late Aristide Briand, who began his political career in Nantes.

ARRESTS BEFORE ATTEMPT

Seven Breton Autonomists were arrested in Nantes Saturday evening, but so far they have not been connected with the criminal attempt. They were under suspicion of having come here to manifest in favor of separation from France.

Autonomists were charged with wrecking a monument at Rennes last August on the same day Premier Herriot spoke at Vannes at another Franco-Breton fusion celebration.

WORKER FALLS

Vancouver, Nov. 21 (Canadian Press).—Falling twenty feet from the roof of a building at the United Grain Growers' Terminal at the foot of Vernon Drive, here, at 9.30 a.m. to-day, James Thompson, East Portlieth Avenue, was badly bruised and shaken. He was removed to the General Hospital.

LEON TROTZKY CROSSES FRANCE

Associated Press

Marseilles, France, Nov. 21.—Leon Trotzky, Russian exile who is on the way from Turkey to Copenhagen, was taken off his ship outside the harbor here to-day and carried ashore by a coastguard speedboat.

He was not permitted to linger, but left immediately by automobile for Lyons, from where he will resume his voyage to Denmark.

Police were under orders to permit no one to get anywhere near him while he remained on French soil.

Trotzky is to deliver a lecture on the Russian revolution at Copenhagen University, and then return to Prinkipo Island in the Sea of Marmora, the place of his exile.

How to Pay Cost Of Survey Is Problem

Now the question is being asked not only how Dr. Brittain is to be paid, but also as to what branches of administration are covered by "municipal organization?"

It is contended in some quarters that the "king-pin" of any municipal organization is the council with next in importance the school board and the police commission, which are responsible for the organization and administration of branches of municipal activities.

Others are of opinion the investigation and survey do not include the proceedings of the administrative bodies, but merely the officials and employees.

When questioned on the point Dr Brittain smiled and in effect said: "Wait and see!"

South Burnaby, B.C., Nov. 21.—Death came unexpectedly Sunday to James Devine, eighty-two, 1507 Royal Oak Avenue, who had resided in Burnaby for more than twenty years.

Mr. Devine came to British Columbia from Scotland.

Meat Shipments Are Delayed By Strike

Canadian Press

Wellington, N.Z., Nov. 21.—Exports from this country to the United Kingdom of frozen meats have been held up by a strike at the dockyards.

The strike resulted from a dispute among the workers in the freezing industry over the employment of volunteer labor.

While there is more mutton and lamb shipped from New Zealand to the United Kingdom, the frozen meat exports represent a big figure in the Dominion's business. In 1930 the value of frozen meat exported was nearly $500,000.

Chilliwack, B.C., Nov. 21.—Two unsuccessful attempts to burn the Chinese Masonic Hall at Chinatown, about two miles from Chilliwack, were made Saturday evening. Coal oil had been thrown on the doors and charred paper was found, but the green wood of the new building and dampness frustrated the attempts.

Police here are of the opinion the work was that of Chinamen outside of the order.

Hitler Tries Hand At Lining Up Cabinet

"Herr Hitler does not feel that he, as leader of the largest party in Germany, should run around begging the smaller parties for support. We are quite willing to have men like Konstantin von Neurath, Count von Krosick Schwerin, and Gen. Kurt von Schleicher continue to serve."

Just as on Saturday, crowds gathered in front of the President's office and the Kaiserhof Hotel, to watch Hitler arrive and depart. His followers sent up loud cheers, and the police were forced to keep a lane clear for the Nazi motorcar.

Hitler immediately summoned all the principal sub-leaders in his party to a conference.

In the course of his conversation with the President on Saturday, the National Socialist leader concentrated on four points:

1. That the Nazis are Germany's last bulwark against communism.

2. That the Reichswehr (the army) is sacrosanct to the Hitlerites and that everything will be done to promote its efficiency and popularize it among the masses of the people.

3. That the fight against the restrictions of the Versailles Treaty will be carried on and intensified.

4. That a cabinet headed by Hitler would consider its cardinal domestic task to be to get the jobless off the streets and into productive work.

while after unless it was a forced sale," said Mr. Maclean.

Mr. Maclean went on to assert that on a forced sale basis, according to the evidence of Stewart Clark, the property would have no value at all, as it would cost too much to convert it into a structure for other purposes.

"There is no use going on with long-winded arguments," said the judge. "This question should go before the Court of Appeal. I have given a good deal of study to this. My feeling throughout has been that the opinion should be determined by the Court of Appeal."

Because of this, he declared the order to be signed by him should be in such terms as to enable the city to get before the Court of Appeal.

"The question before the Court of Appeal will be what is the meaning of 'actual value'?" the judge commented.

He then asked for the order as drawn by Mr. Maclean and signed it.

Mr. Maclean, arguing as to which side should bear the costs of the hearings so far, which include costs of expert witnesses on both sides, argued that the appeal of C. H. O'Halloran as counsel for the Bishop of Victoria was double-barrelled. He had appealed on the assessment on the building, on which point he had won, but he also had appeal on the land valuation, on which point he had lost. Mr. Maclean urged therefore that no costs should be allowed by either side against the other.

Mr. O'Halloran argued that as most of the costs were incurred in connection with the assessment of the building, with the evidence of expert valuators, and this was the phase of the case the city lost, therefore the costs should be against the city.

The judge, however, declared that as much time was given to the question of the value of the land as to that of the value of the building, he would make no order as regards the legal costs, which meant that each side would have to pay its own costs.

separated and placed under their own ministers. By this time the population had grown to approximately 300,000, and the membership to forty-two. In 1916 agriculture was made a separate department, and subsequently education was created as a separate portfolio. British Columbia thus had a ministry of nine and a population of roughly 450,000, the membership remaining at forty-two.

RATIO CHANGES

The ratio of membership immediately after Confederation was one cabinet minister for every 7,000 population and one member for every 1,000. In 1916 the ratio was one cabinet minister for every 50,000 population and one member for every 17,000.

To-day with a population of nearly 700,000 and a House of forty-eight members, British Columbia has one cabinet minister for every 77,000 population and one member for every 14,000.

Advocates of smaller representation point out that no increase in membership was made between 1871 and 1890, the number remaining at twenty-five, while the population increased from 36,247 to 98,173. Eight new members were added in 1890, or one member for every additional 7,500 population. In 1896 the membership was increased to thirty-eight, while the population numbered 178,657, or one member for every 15,000 increase. Four more were added in 1902. The number remained at forty-two until 1923, when five more brought the membership up to forty-seven, with a population of roughly 544,000. Between 1902 and 1923 five members were added, with an increase in population of 366,000, or a ration of one member to each 73,000 increase.

In political circles it is not though the two large centres, Vancouver and Victoria, will retain their present membership of six and four respectively. Whether or not they will be cut in two, or lose one member each, will be fought out in caucus. Victoria's present ratio is about one member for every 10,000 population, while that of Vancouver, including Point Grey, is anywhere from 30,000 to 35,000.

It is said the cause of trouble was due to a new scale of rations, but there were no details.

League Council at Grips With Manchuria Issue

"Outer Mongolia has become sovietized," he said. "Thibet is at war with China, and Turkestan, almost entirely cut off from contact, is nominally a sovereign state.

"The national government controls by military force alone only several provinces about the mouth of the Yangtze. Canton is independent and hostile, and as the commission reports, there is a menace from another source, namely Communism.

"At the time of the Washington Conference there was no threat of Communism in China, which was imported by Sun Yat Sen in 1925."

The Japanese representative recalled the military interventions of other great powers in China and stressed the presence of anti-foreign feeling, declaring "the National Government works assiduously to instill hatred of foreigners into the minds of the younger generation."

BOYCOTT MENTIONED

Denouncing the boycott as "warfare of insidious character," the Japanese speaker pictured the distress his people had suffered as a result.

"Why is a boycott when it assumes an official or semi-official character not condemned by the League and outlawed?" he asked.

M. Matsuoka pictured the rule of the late Marshal Chang Tso-lin and his son, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, as a reign of terror for the Manchurians, under which the Japanese suffered especially during the regime of the younger Chang.

"Even Japanese patience cannot be stretched indefinitely," he said. "The incident of September 18, 1931, was the straw which broke it."

NO OUTSIDE INTERFERENCE

He said Japanese sentiment would not permit outside interference with the Manchurian question and Japanese subjects would have been seriously undermined during delay incidental to league procedure if the Manchurian matter had been referred to the League by Japan. Also he said there was a difference between the Japanese and the western mentality.

M. Matsuoka disagreed with the commission's opinion that Manchuria was an integral part of China, but agreed with the commission's view that a status "ante-quo" cannot be restored."

He said the maintenance of the present regime was not unsatisfactory, but appeared to the Japanese as the only solution possible. He contradicted the commission's view that Manchukuo had been established by the Japanese, declaring its presence due to the evident wish of the people to be rid of the Changs.

(China, which claims sovereignty over Manchuria, has not officially made any findings on the Lytton report. A dispatch from Nanking to-day said the executive Yuan had begun consideration of the report.)

READY TO ORGANIZE

W. W. Yen, representing China here, loosed a barrage at the Japanese reply, however, declaring that "we hate war, we detest militarism and we long for peace, but if necessary we will embrace the evil of militarism in order to free our territory from an invader."

Simultaneously the chairman of the investigation commission, Lord Lytton, of Great Britain, which spent weeks in Manchuria, China and Japan, publicly asserted the issue was whether the principle of collective responsibility for maintenance of peace and justice should be sacrificed. The present situation in Manchuria, he said, could not be regarded as consistent with existing treaties.

The Japanese reply pointed out several points in which Japan disagreed with the Lytton commission, and it was the nearly unanimous opinion in League quarters that the Japanese position had not been changed.

CHINESE STATEMENT

Washington, Nov. 21.—The Chinese Government in a statement through its legation here said the Japanese "observations" on the Lytton report must be regarded "as a one-sided version of the Japanese story."

"In point of fact," the Chinese statement continued, "when the League commission of inquiry was proceeding with its investigation in Manchuria, the Japanese had already submitted such statements to the commission. The findings and conclusion reached by the commission as embodied in the report were, however, diametrically opposed to those advanced by the Japanese."

I. DILWORTH TO GIVE ADDRESS

Nanaimo Citizens Inspect Schools Wednesday; "Education Week" Meeting Friday

Special to The Times

Nanaimo, Nov. 21—Nanaimo commenced observing "Education Week" yesterday, with the ministers of the churches making references to education. Service clubs have made arrangements to have special speakers on the subject at their luncheons and on Wednesday the citizens will visit the schools. Ira Dilworth of Victoria, chairman of the provincial general committee, will be the principal speaker at a public meeting to be held in the St. John's Ambulance Hall on Thursday evening. A. S. Towell, supervising principal of the Nanaimo schools, is chairman of the "Education Week" committee.

Harry Carroll presided over a meeting of the Ratepayers' Association on Friday evening called for the purpose of drafting a platform and receiving suggestions for the welfare of the city. The chairman stated that more rigid economy would have to be practiced if the town were to remain on the map. Amongst the measures submitted were: Mill rate for 1933 to be forty-seven mills; salaries of aldermen for 1933 to be $10 a month, and for mayor $500 annually; reorganization of schools and all civic departments to meet present conditions; a plebiscite at the municipal elections on returning to the one-year term for aldermen. A motion protesting against the building of curbs on boulevards was carried unanimously. School Trustees Mrs. Griffiths and Mrs. Ekins, spoke of the work of the school board.

Nanaimo Lodge of Elks held a smoker in the Elks Home on Friday, which was attended by members from Port Alberni, Chemainus, Courtenay, Vancouver and Duncan. The entertainment included songs, recitations, instrumental selections and community singing.

SPIRITED CAMPAIGN IN CIVIC ELECTION

E. B. Andros, his opponent, who has already commenced his campaign, has a series of ward meetings scheduled, finishing with a wind-up gathering at the Chamber of Commerce on December 6. Mr. Andros has a meeting scheduled for this evening at Girls' Central School.

Mayor Leeming will use the radio on several occasions to discuss civic affairs for the benefit of the electors.

The list of candidates appears to have reached its limit, except for two retiring members of the council who have not yet announced whether they will run again.

PAPERS FILED

Nomination papers of J. A. Shanks, aldermanic candidate, and John Wood, candidate for school trustee, have already been filed. Several others have taken out their papers.

Interest in the mayoralty and aldermanic contests is high, with many persons seeking council honors, but there are only four candidates so far for three vacant school board seats.

Veteran Alaskan Is Mushing To Chicago

Associated Press

Copper Centre, Alaska, Nov. 21.—To the cry of "Mush there, Mush," nine well-fed Alaska sled dogs headed out of here at dawn Sunday en route with their driver, Clyde Williams, veteran of thirty-one years of prospecting, trapping and mushing in the northland, on an overland trip to Chicago.

Through Mantaspa Pass, twelve miles northeast of here, thence to Tanana crossing on the Tanana River, the nine animals drew a sled loaded with 250 pounds of food for themselves and their master, blankets, a tent and a camp stove.

After Tanana crossing will come Forty Mile, a mining camp of "Roaring Days of '98," and thence up the broad ice-covered Yukon to Dawson, metropolis of gold rush days both on the Canadian side of the international border.

From Dawson, Williams, fifty-two years old and known as "Slim," will depend on assistance of the Canadian government for directions. He hopes to be able to cut across the rolling snow-covered Yukon territory toward Winnipeg, following a route given him by the Dominion Government.

A typical sourdough, Williams would not predict an arrival time in Chicago, saying only that he must get there "before the snow leaves in the spring."

Warden Recalls Convict's Past

Associated Press

McAlester, Okla., Nov. 21.—Warden Sam Brown of the Oklahoma penitentiary glanced up at his new prisoner.

It was Rev. S. A. Berrie, fifty-two, sentenced to a life term at hard labor on conviction of the poison murder of his first wife at Muskogee.

Warden Brown stared hard for a few moments.

"Say, aren't you the fellow who used to run the saloon down at Foss before statehood?" queried the warden.

"Yes, I'm the man," Berrie answered.

Berrie was pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church at Muskogee when the murder charge was filed last summer.

URGES NATIONAL RELIEF BOARD

One Function Would Be to Raise Morale of Unemployed, Says Manufacturer

Canadian Press

Calgary, Nov. 21.—A national relief board is required by the Dominion, according to Capt. F. C. Brown, chairman of the British Columbia Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. A board was needed to study questions of shorter working hours, new industries and raising the level of morale among unemployed, Capt. Brown told the Calgary branch of the C.M.A.

In his address Capt. Brown said that only by an inconceivably sharp upward movement could the unemployed of Canada be absorbed by industry. A return to normal conditions, he believed, would find a large number still unemployed, due to the improvement in machinery during the last few years. He believed machinery development would launch industry "on an era of the keenest competition yet witnessed."

ARMS EQUALITY IS ADVOCATED

Ottawa, Nov. 21—"Great Britain's conduct at the disarmament conferences has been disgraceful," said Professor Eugene Forsey of McGill University in an address on German politics before the People's Forum here yesterday evening.

The promise of the victor nations to disarm, made when they induced Germany to consent to disarmament at the Versailles Peace Conference, has not been kept, he said. Both France and Britain, he believed, were now beginning to see Germany must be given arms equality and there was much criticism in Great Britain of the attitude of Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary.

Germany would eventually be forced to Communsim, he predicted. Policies of both Liberals and Conservatives had been tried and neither could produce a remedy for the country's troubles.

Two Men Shot To Death in Fight

Detroit, Nov. 21.—Max Heizwlbatz, thirty-one, of Columbus, Ohio, and Bruno Scheible, thirty-one, were shot to death yesterday in the apartment where Scheible lived. The apartment showed indications of a terrific struggle.

Investigators said they were looking for a woman who called police to the scene shortly after the shooting.

MAN LOSES CORN AND TOE WITH IT

Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 21.—For that stubborn corn try a lead plaster. Blaine Slavin is the discoverer of the remedy and does not care who uses it.

As Slavin strolled homeward in the little hours of Sunday, two men sprinted past him. Slavin was formerly a detective and the men's haste aroused the hunting instinct in him. He gave chase, caught up with the men and asked several pointed questions.

One of the men took a distinct dislike to Slavin and said so.

"I don't like you," he stated frankly "Blow."

And he drew a revolver and shot Slavin in the foot.

Slavin hobbled to a police station and removed his shoe and sock. A smile lit his face.

"Gone," he said. "Gone—that corn on my right small toe. They shot it off."

CHLOROFORM IS CAUSE OF DEATH

Student in Toronto, Seeking Relief From Pain, Uses Too Much

Canadian Press

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Preparations were under way here to-day for the burial of the late Frank N. Cohen of Winnipeg. A third-year medical student at the University of Toronto, Cohen was found dead in his rooming house here yesterday evening. The body was discovered in bed, attired only in underclothing, with a bottle of chloroform strapped under the nose by means of strips of clothing.

Percy Muir of Fort William, a roomer in the same house, uneasy at Cohen's continued absence, went to his room to investigate. Finding the door locked, Muir effected entry through a window and found his fellow-student dead. Cohen was known at the university as Cowan.

A post-mortem was held and Dr. Crawford this morning announced there would be no inquest.

In Cohen's room, police found two bottles, one containing ether and the other containing chloroform. Chief Coroner Crawford reported the ether had not been touched. Some of the chloroform had been used, he said.

Cohen suffered from attacks of migraine, Dr. Crawford found. He described it as a severe neuralgia of the face which causes acute, almost unbearable pain in the head.

J. A. Jermyn, a classmate of Cohen's, said Cohen had been attempting too much work. Occasionally when his jaw and teeth ached, Cohen seemed depressed, Jermyn said.

FATHER'S STATEMENT

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—A sufferer from attacks of migraine—neuralgia of the face—for several years, Frank N. Cohen of Winnipeg, found dead in Toronto yesterday evening, had often used chloroform to ease the pain, according to his father, W. Cohen, local furrier.

"Frank was used to taking little doses of chloroform to get relief from pain," said Mr. Cohen.

CULT MURDER IN DETROIT

Negro Tells Police He Killed Another Negro at His Home

Associated Press

Detroit, Nov. 21—Police, investigating an apparent murder, yesterday elicited from the self-styled "king" of a weird cult a confession he had selected and killed a sacrificial victim on an improvised altar at his home.

The confession was attributed to Robert Harris, forty-four-year-old negro. Harris said his "religious order" had a membership of about 100 negroes in Detroit.

The victim was James J. Smith, forty, also a negro, Harris said.

Police, recalling the slaying of Benny Evangelista, leader of a fantastic religious cult, his wife and four children here in 1929, to-day said they would take Harris's palm prints to determine whether he was the wielder of the axe that killed the Evangelistas. Detectives repeatedly have expressed the belief the Evangelistas were killed by the head of some rival cult.

AT NINTH HOUR

Harris was quoted by police as saying:

"The ninth hour of the twentieth day had come Sunday. It was predestined 1,500 years ago that at that hour I must make a human sacrifice to my gods. It must not be a member of the Order of Islam, but some stranger—the first person I met after leaving my home."

That person, Harris said, was Smith so he invited him into his home and crushed his head with the rear axle of an automobile, "just to quiet him." The ritual then required, he said, that the body be placed on the altar and a sacrificial knife thrust through the heart.

An eight-inch knife was found thrust to the hilt in Smith's heart.

A cheap magazine found in Harris's home was opened to a story of mysticism in the desert. The words, "The believer must be stabbed through the heart" were underlined.

Although Harris had been tractable during the interrogation, four police were required to restrain him when the time came to place him in a cell.

Pastor Explains Gambling Points

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—Hospital sweepstakes and church raffles are gambling, but bets on golf scores between players, bridge at so much a point, and grain market speculation were excluded from the "forbidden pastime" by Rev. J. Richmond Craig of Grace United Church in a sermon yesterday evening.

Dealing in grain futures involved a possible service and so could not be termed gambling, he said.

SEARCHLIGHT BEAM IS TELEPHONE LINK

Associated Press

Lake Desolation, N.Y., Nov. 21.—A twinkling point of light on the horizon, scarcely distinguishable from the stars, will send a message to a group of scientists on a lonely Adirondack mountainside to-morrow night if a scheduled attempt to conduct a long-distance telephone conversation over a searchlight beam is successful.

In a remote region of upstate New York, where people live who have never spoken over an ordinary household telephone, the scientists hope to hear the voices of men gathered about the twinkling light—in reality a powerful searchlight twenty-five miles away.

And if the experiment succeeds, the men on the mountain will speak back.

The longest light-wave telephone conversation up to now was made last spring from a rooftop in Schenectady to the United States dirigible Los Angles, two miles away.

Tariff Board's Action Awaited

Canadian Press

London, Nov. 21.—Value of the United Kingdom's new trade pacts with the Dominions lies in acceptance by the Dominions of the principles of reasonable competition and full opportunity for representation before their tariff boards, the annual report of the wool textile delegation said to-day.

The report, which represents the opinion of the central body of the wool trades, including that of organized employers in Yorkshire, Lancashire and the west of England, said in part:

"The value of the agreements does not lie in reduced rates of duties which are part of the agreements and which should properly be regarded as little more than a gesture indicating the direction in which the duties may be expected to be altered as a result of proceedings before the tariff boards."

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE PLAN

Associated Press

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 21—In an epochal step the American Federation of Labor's executive committee to-day submitted a plan of compulsory unemployment insurance, proposing it be adopted by every state, paid for by employers, and administered by a state commission.

The benefits would not be denied to those out of work because of a trade dispute, or if non-membership in a labor union was a condition of employment.

Recognized conditions vary in different states, the plan recommends enactment of a federal law to supplement state legislation.

INCOME OF U.S. FARMS ESTIMATED

Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 21—The United States farmers' gross income for this year is tentatively estimated by the Agriculture Department at $5,240,000,000,—less than half of the 1929 returns.

Farm production in 1931 brought $6,955,000,000. In 1930 it was $9,403,000,00 and in 1929 it was $11,950,000,000.

Reduction in gross returns since 1929 is ascribed "largely to national and world-wide changes in financial and economic conditions which have brought about lower price levels in general, and have curtailed demand for farm products in both the domestic and foreign markets."

The livestock industry suffered the worst.

HAMILTON DEATH

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 21.—Mrs. R. S. Ambrose, widow of the Canadian composer, died at her home here Sunday at the age of ninety-one. She had been a resident of Hamilton for the last sixty-nine years.

NOT FAVORABLE TO MORATORIUM

Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 21. — Political forecasts indicate that when President Hoover and President-elect F. D. Roosevelt informally discuss foreign debts to-morrow, the prevailing atmosphere will be against a further moratorium or reduction.

From the highest administration sources has come word the President is definitely opposed to another year's moratorium and prefers the adoption of an attitude more rigid than the continued suspension of payments requested by Great Britain, France and Belgium.

Like the President, Governor Roosevelt has declared against cancellation And while he has been silent on the three requests for a re-examination of the debt problem, prominent Democratic legislators have joined Republican leaders in declaring against the suggestion.

FRANCE READY TO PAY

Paris, Nov. 21—Reports from official circles are that Premier Edouard Herriot is ready to pay the $20,000,000 interest instalment due next month on the debt due the United States if that country should decide against prolonging the Hoover Moratorium.

If the Premier should follow this programme he probably would encounter opposition in Parliament and in financial circles. The attitude of many financiers is that reparations and other war debts now are definitely linked and that if the December interest payment is paid the money should be deposited with the world bank pending final settlement of the debts issue.

THE TEXTILE TRADE AND THE OTTAWA AGREEMENTS

The annual report of the British wool and textile operators just made public in Britain points out that the value of the United Kingdom's new trade pact with the Dominions lies in acceptance by the Dominions of the principles of reasonable competition and full opportunity for representation before their tariff boards. It then says:

"The value of the agreements does not lie in reduced rates of duties which are part of the agreements and which should properly be regarded as little more than a gesture indicating the direction in which the duties may be expected to be altered as a result of proceedings before the tariff boards."

The report to which we have referred represents the opinion of the central body of the wool trades, including that of organized employers in Yorkshire, Lancashire and the west of England. But if the foregoing paragraph means anything at all, it would seem to mean that the wool trades of Britain have abandoned any hope of increasing the export of textiles to Canada. It will be remembered that representatives of the textile interests of Canada and Great Britain met in advance of the Economic Conference and failed completely to reach an agreement.

What the tariff on wearing apparel amounts to is reflected in the customs duty which has to be paid on overcoats. Under the new treaty with Great Britain the rate is between fifteen and twenty per cent higher than it was under the former administration. To quote Mr. Stewart: "This is tariff-making gone mad, and I know of no country that needs overcoats more than this."

Even Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, admits that "we feel the duties on textiles in this country are high," but, he added, "the high duties had been established to maintain the Canadian textile industry because it was threatened with destruction and only higher duties to exclude foreign goods could save it."

The Ottawa House of Commons was told during last Friday's debate on this particular tariff item that the Dominion Textile Company had surpluses in the last two years of $7,515,500 and $7,363,200 respectively. Incidentally, Mr. Stewart said, the present duties are very largely in excess of the rates the leading manufacturers had asked the Liberal government to impose.

It is not new to hear Conservative ministers declaring that high protection is necessary to save the life of an industry. In an industry's infancy, some measure of protection may be necessary; but many of these industries never seem to grow up—they always want protection. The dairy industry of the country was being strangled, according to high protectionists, when the producer was getting nearly forty cents a pound for butter and we were importing large quantities at a cent-a-pound duty. The duty is now five cents a pound; but the producer is getting about twenty cents a pound for his butter.

CANADIAN GOLD AND THE PROSPECT OF GREATER OUTPUT

The view that an upward trend in world production of gold will probably continue for some years to come is expressed in a review of gold production in Canada recently issued by the Dominion Department of Mines. The review is by Mr. A. H. A. Robinson, a mineralogist-technician on the staff. The writer briefly reviews the history of world production of gold, pointing out that the record output was reached in 1915 at 22,718,154 ounces, after which it declined to 15,467,223 ounces in 1922. Again, since that time there has been an upward trend, chiefly due to increasing production in South Africa and Canada. World production in 1931 is estimated at approximately 21,334,000 ounces.

Placer gold, Mr. Robinson says in a summary of Canada's gold history, is said to have been found in the valley of the Chaudiere River in the province of Quebec, as early as 1823 or 1824, but no systematic attempt to work it was made until nearly twenty-five years later. Following the world-wide excitement caused by the famous discoveries in California in 1848, and in Australia in 1851, important discoveries were made of placer gold in British Columbia in 1858, and of lode deposits in Nova Scotia in 1862. Up to 1895 the greater part of the gold produced in Canada was from British Columbia placers, though there was also a substantial production from Nova Scotia lode mines during this period, and the Chaudiere placers in Quebec are estimated to have yielded about $2,000,000 between 1860 and 1876.

In 1896 the discovery of rich gravels on the Klondike River in the Yukon was the beginning of a second period of intensive gold production in Canada, when between 1898 and 1905 gold to the value of more than $100,000,000 (4,836,000 fine ounces) is said to have been obtained from placers on Bonanza, Eldorado, Hunker, Dominion and Sulphur Creeks. During this period also the rich copper-gold deposits of Rossland, and adjoining districts in southern British Columbia, were opened up and exploited, marking the beginning of lode-gold mining in this province. There was also a revival of activity in gold mining in Nova Scotia, and considerable excitement was caused in Ontario by discoveries in the Lake of the Woods district, though in this last case comparatively little actual production resulted. The record of prosperity during this period was reached in 1900, when Canada's gold output reached 1,350,057 fine ounces, the largest annual output recorded up to that time. Between 1900 and 1907 production gradually but steadily decreased to 405,517 ounces.

With the discovery of the Porcupine gold camp in 1909, followed by that at Kirkland Lake in 1912, Canada entered on its third and most important period of gold mining activity, which has not yet reached its culmination, the effect of the Porcupine discoveries on production figures first becoming prominent in 1912. The remarkable success that attended the development of the Porcupine and Kirkland Lake camps led to intensive search for gold, not only in other parts of Ontario, but also in the adjoining provinces of Quebec and Manitoba. In 1924, discoveries were made at Rouyn that have now made Quebec the second largest producer of gold in the Dominion. Others made in Manitoba since 1911 have transformed what was formerly an almost purely agricultural province into one now approaching British Columbia in the magnitude of its gold output. In this province the Premier mine was discovered in 1910, and produced 1,115,166 ounces of gold between 1919 and 1930.

Porcupine and Kirkland Lake are by far the most important sources of gold yet found in Canada, and they seem likely, says Mr. Robinson, to be the predominating factors influencing the trend of production for many years to come. Combined production of these two camps to the end of 1931 was about 20,193,750 fine ounces, equivalent to over fifty per cent of the total recorded production of the Dominion, and to over eighty per cent of its production since 1909. In 1931 they produced 74.7 per cent of Canada's gold, and the increase alone in their production in 1931 over 1930 was practically equal to half the total output of all other gold-producing mines in Canada in the former year.

A COMFORTING MYSTERY

Not the least entertaining bit of recent news is the revelation that Sarah Ann Island has vanished from its accustomed place in the Pacific Ocean.

To begin with, it is nice to know that there is, or was, an island with such a name. Sarah Ann Island—What sentimental captain or what eighteenth century whaling bark or down-east trading brig first ran across that dot of coral, sand and palm trees, and what girl was he thinking of when he gave it that name? There is a fine little story there, somewhere, hidden under that name on the charts.

But the real news of the whole business, of course, is that Sarah Ann has vanished; and an ocean in which solid, long-established islands can disappear from the sight and knowledge of men is an ocean from which the old-time mystery and wonder have not yet departed.

The far seas do tricks like that, now and then, and provide master mariners with tales that landlubbers do not usually believe. A skipper will be driving his ship along in waters where, according to the charts, he has nothing at all to fear; and suddenly an island will loom up in his path, and an outlying reef will open his ship's bottom, and all hands will make for the boats. And then, later, when he reports the accident, a warship will cruise to the spot indicated and will find a hundred fathoms or so of water where the skipper's island was, and the skipper will get credit for having been drunk.

And we stay-at-homes, reading of such marvels, conclude usually that the verdict against the luckless skipper was quite proper; and it is not until we pore over the old books which the daring navigators of long ago wrote for us that we realize that the wide eastern seas are indeed places where peculiar things can happen.

So now comes this story of Sarah Ann Island, to indicate that the old-timers were right; and it is comforting, somehow, to know that the storied queerness of the Pacific is still what it used to be. Sarah Ann will very likely pop up again some day, a few hundred miles out of its location. Meanwhile its disappearance has made a good story for us.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THE EDITORIAL
The St. Catharines Standard

There are some few newspapers scattered around over the country that have no editorial department, but they are simple commercial sheets devoted to advertising and other sources of revenue.

They have no opinions of their own, and therefore no need to express them. The journalist who does nothing but paddle along with public opinion, is of no value.

Every newspaper worthy of the name should aspire to be of the utmost service and help to its community. It can do this if it directs the thought of the community and helps to crystallize public sentiment on worthy objects.

MR. DE VALERA AND IRELAND
The Louisville Courier-Journal

The question now is not what De Valera will do, but what he did. He made it impossible for McNeill to hold office. He and his cabinet insulted McNeill on all occasions. The titular head of the State was not even invited to official functions, and De Valera's apologies were obvious evasions that were no apologies at all. Like a gamin of the streets, the De Valera Government thumbed its nose at the King by snubbing the representative of the Crown. It was merely a bit of insolence to please the galleries. That being over, De Valera has done his part. He still talks of what he calls freedom for Ireland, but he knows that secession from the empire will not be tolerated. For the Free State to cut loose would not only threaten civil war in Ireland, it would endanger the United Kingdom. It would expose England to attack and allow a hostile foreign nation to get a foothold in the British Isles. De Valera realizes, as well as any British statesman, that such an aim is futile and fantastic. The resignation of the Governor-General is but an incident in the present Anglo-Irish controversy.

A NEW RACE

WITH A determination and finality which is novel and refreshing, the federal, and provincial governments have fixed unemployment relief on the basis of $17.50 a month for the total maintenance of a man and his wife. About this there has been sharp protest from the municipalities, which have to come into direct contact with cold and hungry people, desperate fathers and under-nourished children, while the two governments are safely insulated against such vulgar spectacles. (A mahogany-furnished office and a salary of just over $700 a month insulates a man pretty successfully against anything.)

THE MUNICIPALITIES, of course, are wrong. They do not understand the workings of the governmental mind here and in Ottawa, that mind which promised every man a job and swore before the altars of the high gods (with whom it was supposed to be in a special kind of holy communion) that never would it descend to a dole in this country. The workings of this mind are too elevated for mere municipalities to grasp. According to those workings, the new relief scale is not based on the needs of human beings, on the fact that they have stomachs to feed and bodies to clothe and children to keep alive. It is based on the conception that the unemployed are not ordinary human beings like you and me and ministers of the Crown, but that they are a peculiar and dangerous race which don't need to eat as much or to keep as warm as other people; for no minister of the Crown here or in Ottawa will ever claim that he could get along on $17.50 a month for himself and his wife. That is about half the allowance for prisoners in our jails and Doukobors on Pier Island, who have not committed the graver crime of unemployment, but have merely violated the Criminal Code.

WHAT THE municipalities and the public haven't realized yet is that the policy of our Canadian governments is not one of weak sentimentality and sympathy for men who are the victims of our rotten economics and mad governmental policies, but one of resentment against people who have the impudence to become unemployed after our governments have promised that there would be no unemployment. Therefore, we will give them only enough to keep them quiet and satisfy the more weak-minded humanitarians among the prosperous voters. We will balance the budget at the expense of the children's milk ration rather than the millionaire's wine cellar. But here is something that is overlooked by many far-seeing statesmen—if we insist on a deliberate governmental policy in regarding the unemployed as a separate race, with physical characteristics different from ours, with constitutions tougher than Doukhobors, we must not be surprised if they come to regard themselves in that light, too. If we persist in taking advantage of them, we must not be surprised if they take the advantage of us whenever they get the chance. If society is going to look on them as its enemies they are certainly going to look on society in the same light.

BLOSSOM SEES RED

SPEAKING OF such dangerous things, there are signs of impending revolution out our way. I mean to say, things have gone pretty far, our system of society has reached the edge of the abyss when old Colonel Blossom turns Red. Yes, Colonel Blossom is in revolt, and he swears (and when Col. Blossom swears he swears, I can tell you) that he will never rest until the system is smashed. "I tell you," the Colonel told me to-day, "that the system has become a racket, dominated by a few ignorant fellas in New York, worked entirely for their personal gain, with no consideration whatever for the small man who does his best, who plays the game the best way he can. Well, I refuse to be bound by these arrangements. So far as I am concerned, the whole system can go to smash to-morrow. It has become too mad and complicated to endure, anyway. From now on I am going to do as I like, regardless of all conventions. I tell you, sir, these new bridge rules that have just been issued in New York are utterly unsound and quite cock-eyed, by gad! I refuse to obey them! Call me a rebel if you like, but I simply won't follow this system! The sooner we scrap these new-fangled notions and get back to good old auction the better." And with that the Colonel marched down the road, knowing that he was a dangerous fanatic and a menace to society, and thoroughly enjoying it.

PARLIMENTARY GHOST

IN THE picture gallery of the Parliament Buildings, among the frowning worthies of our pioneer days, whose well-known valor and intelligence are hidden behind an impenetrable forest of whiskers, is one remarkable group. It shows the Provincial Legislature some time in the seventies, half a dozen elegant gentlemen in frock coats and lush facial shrubberies. As a historian of the Province pointed out to me yesterday, one of the members of the House had just died before the picture was taken. But when the negative was developed, the face of a man not included in the group emerged dimly in the background. You can see it still in the finished photograph. They call it the ghost picture, and persons interested in the occult declare that it was the spirit of the recently-deceased hon. member, come back to be with his colleagues on this historic occasion. They tell me that experts have been puzzling about that ghostly intruder for the last half century, but none of them so far, has suspected the obvious truth. As I pointed out to my historian friend, obviously that fellow in the background is the Forgotten Man, the taxpayer of British Columbia, who emerged just once upon the consciousness of our Legislature in the year 1871 and has never been heard of in these premises since.

WILD GEESE

IT IS CHARMING to read in the public prints that Attorney-General Pooley has been up to Kamloops for a few days hunting geese in the rolling stubble fields along the benches of the green Thompson. No one who knows what Mr. Pooley has been up against since he became the legal adviser and handy man of the government will grudge him a brief outing before he gets ready for the annual session of the House, for most of the work falls on him. He usually has to lead the House, draft the legislation, deplore the opposition, subdue the caucus and ride herd on his colleagues, for which he gets no reward but an occasional goose hunt up Kamloops way. It is charming to read of him crawling in the traditional fashion about the stubble fields, and more delightful to hear that the custom up there is to thrust some branches into your headgear so that the geese will think you are a willow tree, for apparently they don't like attorneys-general. If Mr. Pooley could invent some disguise to protect himself against the hordes of gentry who stalk him down here, as he stalks the geese up by Kamloops, his job would be much easier. Alas, it would take more than a willow tree to keep them off. But what I cannot understand about Mr. Pooley's notable expedition to Kamloops is this—if he really wanted a wild goose chase, the wilder the better, why did he leave our own Parliament Buildings? Why didn't he wait for the Legislature's great seasonal flight? There's a wild goose chase what is wild.

AN ARID RECORD

To the Editor:—I notice that Candidate Andros is making a lot of promises in his appeal to the electors. If his record as alderman is any criterion he would be the most useless mayor imaginable if he were elected to that office. He did little on the aldermanic board but make wisecracks and draw his pay. And that is all he would do if he were mayor. Civic office should not be made the plaything of estimable retired gentlemen who have no other means of putting in their time.

RUSSIA

To the Editor: — A correspondent writing in The Times of November 19 says: Stalin was one who had helped to lead the working class of Russia to a system of scientific socialism.

I wish to say such is not the case. This is a misleading statement.

In Russia they are building "state capitalism," and socialism, also they are using all the objectionable features of capitalism to stimulate the output, piece rates, bonus, etc.

Also they are paying as high as 10 per cent interest on state loans, with perhaps the exception of China, Russia will be the last country in the world to be ripe for socialism.

ENCOURAGING AND INSPIRING

To the Editor: — It is encouraging to see so many aspirants for the vacancies on the City Council, so many people who are anxious to sacrifice their comfort, convenience, time and energy, purely for the public interest. It is inspiring also to realize that there are so many persons who, regardless of their knowledge or lack of knowledge, experience or lack of experience, of even small business, feel that they are quite competent to direct the largest business of this city, namely, the city's business. But what intrigues my curiosity most is the phenomenon of the rush for civic office, and the active interest of so large a number in public affairs in hard times, whereas in good times it is difficult to get anybody to run. There was no Ratepayers' Association in 1929—no doubt the exigencies of the stock market were too pressing and attractive for the cultivation of research into civic problems. Probably, say, in 1934, when good times may have returned and holders of real estate will be so anxious to sell out at excessive figures that they will be demanding that the city assessor double their assessments—as they did in 1910-11—there will again be great difficulty in getting candidates to run for municipal offices, and the Ratepayers' Association will have dissolved "into air, into thin air." INTRA-EMPIRE DEBATE.

To the Editor:—May we be permitted to direct attention of your readers to the Intra-Empire Debate on Thursday evening of this week at the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium. This event will be under the auspices of the Service Clubs Council of Victoria. Its purpose is chiefly educational, offering to those interested in debating an opportunity to hear discussion on an important economic topic, and incidentally to develop an intra-empire connection. Mr. Hector McNeill of Glasgow University and Mr. Ivor B. Jones of the University of Wales, the visiting British team, come to Canada under the auspices of the National Federation of Canadian University Students and are the selected representatives of the federated debating societies of British universities.

Victoria is to be represented by Mr. J. Villiers Fisher of the Civil Service Literary and Debating Society and Mr. Alaric Corby, president of the Beta Delta Society of Victoria High School.

The subject of the debate is "Resolved: That democracy has been proved in the past ten years to be a failure." Victoria representatives take the affirmative side. Professor Farr, Jos. B. Clearihue and B. C. Nicholas have consented to act as judges. His Worship Mayor Leeming will preside.

It is hoped to have the interest and support of the numerous literary and debating societies in Victoria and particularly of the High Schools and private schools and colleges of Victoria and vicinity. For this purpose a special low admission charge is being offered for students. Tickets may be purchased in advance at Fletcher Bros. store.

FAST FIXTURES AT LAKE HILL

West Road, Intermediate Baptists and Lake Hill Girls Hoop Victors

West Road intermediate Baptists and Lake Hill girls emerged victorious from the three fast basketball games at Lake Hill gym Friday evening. In the first game the Baptist intermediate boys won from the home intermediate team in a hard-fought game by a score of 15 to 13. Checking by both teams was the main feature of the evenly-contested game. In the second game the Cardinals lost to Lake Hill girls, 22 to 17. The Cardinals were unable to locate the basket, while the home team piled up a score of 16 to 4 in the first half. In the second half the visitors got right down to business with good combination and individual play in which Trotter made some beautiful baskets, but they were unable to overcome the home team's lead. The last game was fast, with West Road guards checking hard on the home K. of P. team, which was weak with sickness. It looked like easy pickings for the West Road until the second half came, when K. of P. got into their real form and pulled up to within two points of the visiting team when the final whistle blew, with the score 22 to 20 for West Road.

The teams and individual scorers follow.

MAJOR WHEELER VISITS PARENTS

His Surveys Greatly Assisted Work of Mount Everest Expedition of 1924

Major Oliver Wheeler, R.E., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Wheeler of Sidney, accompanied by his wife and young son, has arrived from Quetta, Baluchistan, India, for an extended visit with his parents.

Like his father, who for many years has been actively identified with the Alpine Club of Canada, Major Wheeler is an experienced mountaineer. He was a member of the 1921 Mount Everest expedition and the work accomplished by the 1924 expedition under General Charles Bruce, which scaled to within 800 feet of the world's highest peak, was due in a large measure to Major Wheeler's mapping done on the previous expedition. The intrepid Mallory and Irvine, it will be recalled, lost their lives after climbing 28,340 feet up Mount Everest, which is 29,140 feet high.

MAY BE LUCKY

Major Wheeler is interested in the proposed expedition designed to conquer Mount Everest.

"The ascent of Mount Everest will eventually be accomplished," he said. "Attempts of this kind will continue to appeal to the adventurous spirit. It depends largely on luck, and luck means the right kind of weather and the right combination of other circumstances. The expedition that is now projected may be the lucky one."

Major and Mrs. Wheeler and their little son came to Canada from Quetta by way of Africa and England, the trip occupying eight months. They reached the Dark Continent through East Africa, traveled through Rhodesia and visited the famous Victoria Falls at Nyanza before making their way to Capetown to sail for London.

An improvement in general conditions was noticeable in South Africa and also in Great Britain, Major Wheeler commented.

GARRISONS CUT

The military garrisons of the Indian frontier are feeling the effects of the economic slump. Quetta, at which point Major Wheeler has been stationed, is feeling the effects of the government's attempt to economize all Indian services. The Indian branch of the Royal Engineers, to which he has been attached, took a 10 per cent cut in pay with expense accounts being cut in proportion, the result being that the standard of living and entertaining has been reduced. In addition to the 10 per cent pay cut about 30 per cent of the government service employees have either been dismissed or suspended pending the return of better times. The latter group had a small retaining fee. The majority of those dismissed were native Indians, but whether European or native those dismissed received superannuation allowances on the regulation basis.

Of the 300 or more Royal Engineer officers in India, the majority are employed on ordinary military works, Major Wheeler stated. His own branch has to do with surveys. Major Wheeler motored with his family from Montreal to Victoria via Toronto, Kansas City, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Salt Lake City, Portland and Seattle.

J.B.A.A. IN SURPRISE WIN

Defeat Rayshines in Women's Basketball Clash 21 to 19; Lucille Sparks Stars

Staging a great rally in the final two quarters of the game, Alan Wright's J.B.A.A. Whites turned in the greatest surprise victory of the current Victoria and District Basketball League schedule at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday evening, when they downed the crack Rayshines 21 to 19 in a women's senior "B" encounter.

In the other two games, Centennials ran in forty-nine points against Normal's fifteen to take the senior "C" men's fixture, while the Green Mill humbled the Normal's senior "B" squad 27 to 17.

Starting off at a fast clip the Rayshines took the lead right from the start. Ruby Bethel, stalwart guard, was doing most of the offensive work for her side and at the half-way mark had collected two baskets and three foul shots for a total of seven points out of the ten her side had collected. The Bays, up to half time, had shown very little ability on the offensive, although they were playing a nice defensive game.

BAYS RALLY

With the start of the final period, the Bays uncorked a terrific attack and, led by the diminutive Lucille Sparks, soon cut down the Rayshines' lead. The score in the third quarter was close all the way with the Bays getting the break with time as they regained the lead less than two minutes before the final whistle.

The other two games were easy victories for both the Centennials and the Green Mill.

Tommy Macedo refereed.

The teams and individual scorers follow:

FREE KICKS BEAT ROYALS

St. Saviours Score Three Goals in This Manner to Take Match 3 to 2

Vancouver, Nov. 21.—Westminster Royals, former Dominion soccer champions, failed to break through into the win column again Saturday when they dropped a 3 to 2 decision to St. Saviours in a Pacific Coast Football League fixture here. It was the Saints' third win over the Royals this year, each by the same score. To date the best the Royal City squad has been able to do is a tie game, three weeks ago, having dropped their other contests. They won an intercity game at Victoria.

Royals opened strongly and appeared headed for their first win. Twelve minutes from the starting whistle Grey headed the ball to Hammond, who shot into the far corner of the net to put the Royals in the lead. A minute later Saints equalized when they were awarded a penalty kick after Stoddart had elbowed Rothweiler. Bradbury scored on the kick. Royals went ahead shortly afterwards when Stirling beat Alsbury on a low shot. A half minute from halftime Rimmer fouled Rothweiler and Moffatt put the kick into the goal to equalize.

Just after resumption Rothweiler was fouled again by Stoddart, and Moffatt, taking the kick, drove in what proved to be the winning goal. Saints fell back on defence towards the end of the half, and Royals narrowly missed scoring on several occasions. Burt and Preston combined on a grand run half the length of the field which ended in a hard drive that Sanford just managed to fist over the bar. The Saints resorted to kicking out to save their lead.

Jimmy McLarnin To Meet Fuller Soon

Vancouver, Nov. 21.—Jimmy McLarnin received a wire Saturday from his manager, "Pop" Foster, to the effect that contracts had been signed for a match with Sammy Fuller, Boston, for Madison Square Garden on December 6.

Foster had been angling for a bout with the champion, Jackie Fields, but for some reason or other, Jack Kearns would not come to terms. Previously the talk had been a battle with Tony Canzoneri, lightweight title holder, who had beaten Billy Petrolle, but Canzoneri suddenly decided they would be giving away too much weight and ran out.

McLarnin will leave for the east on Monday or Tuesday to get in a couple of weeks' roadwork and training before he goes against the clever Fuller.

The Band of the Fifth B.C. Coast Brigade will present a concert in the main auditorium of the Centennial United Church, Gorge Road, on Friday night next, in aid of the funds of the Burnside School. Assisting artists will be Miss Merle North and Dr. Harry Johns. The chair will be occupied by Trustee P. E. George.

PUPILS' RECITAL MUCH ENJOYED

Works of modern composers constituted the very attractive and successful programme given by pupils of Mrs. C Paget-Mellor in recital at the New Thought Hall on Saturday evenning. The first half comprised duets and solos for the piano, and vocal solos and duet; and the second half was devoted to the presentation of the musical phantasy, "The Seasons." This was in four parts, each season being introduced by a short extract from English literature, recited by Norah Cullen. The second section was particularly interesting to the students.

Mrs. Sidney Oliver made a short address in presenting certificates of the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music to successful pupils, the special award being that of the gold medal for highest marks in intermediate grade pianoforte in Canada, won by Violet Paget Mellor at the age of thirteen.

THOSE TAKING PART

Those taking part in the first half of the programme were as follows: Piano duets, Hazel and Graham Price; Dorcas Muir and Mildred Graham; and Jean Straight and Jean Routley; piano solos, Edith Cameron, Douglas Willard, Kathleen Greenwood, Marie Lock, Florence Greenwood, Doris Hallier, Leonore Crawford, John Routley, and Jean Waddell; vocal duet, Dorcas Muir and John Routley; vocal solos, Hilda Wood and Miss Rhoda Walton; and monologue, Miss Norah Cullen.

Those taking part in "The Seasons" were as follows: Spring, Jean Routley, Violet Paget Mellor and Mildred Graham; summer, Dorcas Muir and Rhoda Walton; autumn, Jean Straight and Madge Bryan, and winter, Geraldine Paget Mellor and Violet Paget Mellor. The chorus, which sang with much sweetness and expression, was made up of Becky Mortimer, Rhoda Walton, Violet Paget Mellor (first sopranos), and Jean Routley, Chrissie Butts and Geraldine Paget Mellor (seconds).

OCTOGENARIAN IS HONORED

Mrs. T. Hughes Celebrates Birthday To-day With "At Home" to Many Friends

Mrs. T. Hughes, venerable resident of Victoria, is to-day receiving congratulations and good wishes on reaching her eightieth milestone, and is celebrating the happy occasion at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chesworth, 327 Simcoe Street, with whom she makes her home.

Following a family luncheon party, Mrs. Hughes was "at home" to her many friends this afternoon. White chrysanthemums were used in decoration of the reception rooms, and the table was centred with a beautifully-decorated icecream cake inscribed: "Happy birthday, Mother," and bearing eighty tiny pink candles. Tall pink tapers in silver holders and chrysanthemums further adorned the table. Mrs. Higham cut the ices. The venerable guest of honor, who enjoys excellent health, received many expressions of the esteem in which she is held by a large circle of friends.

Mrs. Hughes was born in 1852 in Paisley, Scotland, where her husband, who was a well-known merchant of that city, predeceased her forty-one years ago. She came to Victoria from England nineteen years ago to make her home with her family. She has four daughters and one son, Mrs. Edward Blair, Mrs. Colvin Campbell, Mrs. Thomas Keyworth, Mrs. Arthur Chesworth and George Hughes, all of British Columbia; ten grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Mrs. Hughes is a member of the Pentecostal Church and until recent years was active on W.T.C.U. endeavors and all of her life has been interested in church work and the helping of those who needed assistance along life's journey.

Associated Press

Seattle, Nov. 21—A settlement for $35,000 of the $100,650 suit brought by Miss Echo Walling, former traveling saleswoman, against an oil company for injuries she received in an automobile crash has been accepted, her attorneys announced.

The settlement was arrived at after the firm appealed to the State Supreme Court from a King County jury's award of $50,125, declared to be the largest personal injuries judgment ever allowed by a Washington jury. Attorneys George Vanderveer and Sam A. Bassett said. The award was also against a driver of the oil truck, George H. Cootes.

WELL-KNOWN COUPLE WED

Miss Clara P. French Quietly Married to Ian M. McKinnon of Alberta

Daughter of Former Fur Commissioner Bride of Hudson's Bay Co. Man

What might be described as a romance of the Hudson's Bay culminated in an interesting wedding on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. Charles H. French, retired fur commisioner of the Hudson's Bay Company, and Mrs. French, Gorge Road West, when their daughter, Clara Pauline, became the bride of Mr. Ian Malcolm McKinnon, second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McKinnon of Vancouver. Mr. McKinnon is in charge of the Hudson's Bay Co. trading post at La Goff, north of Edmonton, and for eight years was associated with the company in The Arctic Circle, being for some time at Herschel Island.

Rev. David Christie, D.D., formerly of Winnipeg, performed the ceremony, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends only, in the drawing room, which was massed with chrysanthemums in the gold and bronze hues. Entering the room with her father to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin," played by Miss Doris Woolison, the bride wore a lovely gown of crepe silk faille in a deep shade of shrimp pink, finished with a jabot of lace in a Spanish tile shade, the sleeves also ending in deep puffs of the lace. With it she wore a becoming turban of the shrimp pink and moire shoes of the Spanish tile. Her shower bouquet was of roses, single chrysanthemums and fern. The bride was unattended, and Mr. Jack Horne was groomsman.

SMALL RECEPTION

About forty guests attended the informal reception which followed the ceremony. Pink was the color motif in the dining-room, carnations being used as the floral decoration of the supper table, with its Madeira lace cloth, the three-tier wedding cake flanked by tall pink tapers in silver candelabra. Mrs. George Dixon, Mrs. L. D. French, Mrs. R. Newell (of Montreal), and Miss Leta French assisted in serving the guests.

SWEDEN HOPES FOR BETROTHAL

Newspapers Still Expecting Prince George to Wed Princess Ingrid

Stockholm, Nov. 21.—Undaunted by a disillusionment earlier this month when the stage supposedly was all set for the event, newspapers here have decided a royal gathering this coming Saturday is the appropriate time for an announcement of the engagement of Prince George of England and Princess Ingrid of Sweden.

Even if the oft-rumored engagement again fails to materialize, Sweden will have enough to occupy its interest in welcoming home two young honeymooners who may some day reign as king and queen—Prince Gustaf Adolf, eldest son of the Crown Prince and his bride of a month, the slim and blonde Princess Sibylle of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha.

They are expected Friday morning, November 25, and the new rumor going the rounds is that the engagement of Ingrid, Sibylle's sister-in-law, and Prince George, fourth son of King George and Queen Mary, may be announced at the welcoming dinner at the royal castle on Saturday evening.

Coiffure Preserver

An excellent trick for keeping the exposed left side of your coiffure intact, when outdoors is a little device a smart New York woman has originated. Buy a small length of veiling and tie it around your small hat so that it hits you just above the eye and won't obstruct your view and slant it down on the left side so that it covers your hair.

On Saturday afternoon Miss Merle North, contralto, sang very beautifully several groups of songs, accompanied by the hotel orchestra, her numbers including "Mountains" (Rasbach); "Nocturne" (Curran); "Life" (Curran); "Love Is the Wind" (Mitchell); "Spring Interlude" (Gulesram) and "Sunbeam" (Ronald).

LIVELY INTERVIEW BY LADY ASTOR

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Nov. 21.—Lady Astor, member of the British Parliament, came to Hyde Park Sunday to pay a social call upon the President-elect of the United States and Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, and found herself engaged in a lively and good-natured discussion on politics and social conditions with the newspapermen accompanying Mr. Roosevelt.

In a cottage on one of the Roosevelt farms, where members of the family and their friends gathered for afternoon tea, Lady Astor was the centre of the discussion.

"You know, the Americans are less independent than the English," Lady Astor said. "The British would never stand for dashing through the streets behind officers with sirens waving everybody out of the way."

She had been given a motorcycle escort in New York.

"The streets belong to all in England and Englishmen would resent being pushed aside," she continued. "The Prince of Wales, when he motors, goes along like anybody else."

Recognition of Russia by the United States and war debts were two subjects introduced by the writers.

"Of course, you ought to recognize Russia and trade with them," she said. As for war debts, Lady Astor said the United States should cancel them, or "they will cancel themselves."

READING A DELIGHT TO CHILD IN BOOK-LOVING FAMILY

It is difficult to conceive of a child having no interest in books if he grows up in a book-loving family. The family attitude toward reading is just as powerful an influence in stimulating a child's love of books as a mere dutiful purchase of books.

BOOKISH ATMOSPHERE

In any book-conscious household some share of the family conversation is certain to be connected with books what one has read, one's opinion of it, and new books, not to mention the adult's obvious delight in being able to spare enough time to finish a book. These are the roots from which spring a child's curiosity and enjoyment in books.

To be quite personal, books have been a part of all my experiences. I can trace the dates of my childish ailments by the books I got when I had the measles, the sniffles, and tonsilitis, seemingly my only claims to invaldism. I can recall even to-day the exact emotion I experienced when I opened a new and shiny book, its pages crammed with adventure, with the knowledge that I had nothing to do but lie in bed and savor its delights to the fullest.

A BOOK A DAY

Throughout my growing years I made a daily visit to the city library and procured a book which lasted me until the next afternoon at the same time. At sight of me the librarian was filled with consternation. She allowed me to pick out my own books but she felt duty bound to prevent me reading any literature of which she thought my mother might disapprove. Those books I read outside the house.

It would have been unnatural for my children to have been anything but book "fiends," with the particular background furnished them. It has always been a temptation to lead them directly to the best literature without those intermediate steps which mirrored their own enjoyment. I've sternly squelched the temptation.

LET CHILDREN CHOOSE

If I feared at one time that my son would never enjoy anything but lurid "Westerns," I've outgrown that fear. His taste has developed exactly as one would expect it should. The girls' predelection for sets of books of the sweet, sentimental, girly type was also a passing phase. They served their purpose and gave way to stronger meat and the inevitably trend toward non-fiction. Such an evolution in taste comes naturally and need never be forced upon children.

Give children books of all types, plenty of them, and let their discrimination in reading be the outgrowth of their larger interests, their broader knowledge and a complete satisfaction of their present reading interests. Books, like toys, are suited to certain stages of the child's growth and are outgrown when those stages are lived through and past. A book that is "too old" for the child stifles his interests in all books and defeats the very ends for which it is presented—a greater love of books.

FAMILY LIFE PROBLEMS AIRED

Council of Parent Education Discusses Modern Influences on Home Circle

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Dr. Edna Noble White, Director of the Merrill Palmer school of Detroit, gave the welcoming address at the morning session of the third biennial conference of the National Council of Parent Education held at French Lick Springs, Indiana, on Friday, November 11. She gave a brief resume of the subjects which have interested this group in former years and suggested that to-day it is inspired to draw within its borders and co-ordinate all agencies directly, or perhaps only indirectly connected with parent education work.

Dr. Stoddard, Director of the Iowa Child Research Station at Iowa City, who acted as leader of the meeting, introduced Professor A. Eustace Haydon, professor of the history of religion at the University of Chicago, who revealed some of the family patterns of different cultures throughout the ages, touching upon the Romans, Japanese, Jewish, Chinese and Hindu.

DRIVE OF HUMAN DESIRES

"Underlying all culture," said Professor Haydon, "is the drive of human desires. The search for satisfaction completes the organism and is basic to all human endeavor.

"At various periods of history there has seemed to be complete defeat and prostration of culture and at this point some religious prophet has always arisen and promised fulfillment of human desires, in the next world, if not in this.

"There have been fundamental ideals which have persisted throughout the ages: courage, obedience to parents or elders, loyalty, benevolence, observance of proper sex relations and an abstainance from killing, stealing, lying and deceit.

FAMILY PATTERNS

"These ideals and their interpretations differ with various ages and cultures, but family patterns have always contained the fundamental concepts of religious sanction, complete authority of the family head; the family integrity untouched and uninfluenced by other family groups and a common moral ideal. These run throughout the historic family patterns."

The speaker stressed the influence upon the young of those definite, unchangeable ideals and the manner in which they fixed the behavior of the individual by this possession of a goal toward which to be pointed.

"Any survey of historic family patterns makes us all the more aware of the entire break between the past and present. There is not one pattern of ancient culture remaining to-day. The problem of the present is to find ourselves and achieve a family pattern that is unified so that by adherence to it the behavior of the individual may be molded."

ECONOMICS AND FAMILY LIFE

Dr. Paul H. Douglas, professor of economics at the University of Chicago dealt with the subject of "Impact of Current Economic Changes upon Family Relationships."

The economic situation has brought about a marked change in the birth rate. When we have corrected birth and death statistics available it will be apparent that instead of the young outnumbering the old, 6 to 1, as at present, the ratio will be 2 2-3 to 1, he claimed. When we reach that stage the old will be more important than the young and the psychology of senescence of more interest than adolescence, the doctor indicated.

Child Receives Answer From Santa Claus

Little Girl Sent Letter Care Of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police; Commissioner Copies "Aurora Borealigram" To Her.

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Down in Penfield, Pa., little Jean D'Amelio is happy today as she reads over and over a letter from Santa Claus relayed from the North Pole by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Jean had written to Santa, "care of R.C.M.P., Craig Harbor Post Office, North Pole, Canada."

Her letter—asking for roller skates, electric train set, station and doll house with furniture—reached Commissioner J. H. MacBrien at headquarters of the Mounted here, just last week. Unfortunately, it was much too late to catch the boat which leaves each summer for Craig Harbor and Bache Peninsula, and R.C.M.P. post, even closer to the Pole.

But Major-General MacBrien called on the resourcefulness of the Mounties and got the message through to the north. His letter, sent in response to Jean's, told her: "As your letter was late for the post, I sent it to Santa Claus by the aurora borealis and I received the following message from Reindeer Lodge:

"Dear Jean:

"'Thank you for your letter which the Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police sent on to me.

"'I shall do what I can to give you all the things you ask, but times are hard; my poor reindeer are almost worn out, the icebergs here having been very bad the last few years, and I think I shall be obliged to use an airplane for part of my work.

"'Then you must remember there are a great many poor children who get very little between Christmasses—I love them just as much as I do rich children. You see I must look after them too.

"'But I shall remember you and do the best I can for you. Your list has been neatly copied and is hanging up opposite your name in the office of my polar factory, and you may be sure of a call from me on Christmas Eve.

"'Lovingly yours, Santa Claus.'"

"This has been copied out from the paper on which the aurora borealigram came," concluded the commissioner's letter. "I hope that you will have a merry Christmas."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

Since mincemeat improves if allowed to stand a few weeks after making and before using in pies, the foresighted housewife makes her mincemeat in November to give it time to "ripen." The flavors blend as in any spiced concoction and the result is an alluring mixture without any predominating flavor.

The modern mincemeat is quite different from the kind made by our grandmothers. Fifty years ago, mincemeat lived up to its name and actually was thick with meat and rich with suet. To-day some cooks make mincemeat entirely without meat, using nuts, candied fruits, currants, raisins, preserves and fruit juice carefully seasoned with sugar and spices.

However, "proper" mincemeat is made with a combination of tender meat along with the sweet-meats and apples. Boiled cider is considered essential by meticulous cooks. Sweet spiced vinegar from sweet pickles or a mixture of grape juice and lemon juice can be substituted with good results if boiled cider is not a hand. Or sweet cider can be boiled with the other ingredients.

The following rule is a combination of the modern and old-fashioned rich mixture. If you want a very rich mincemeat the amount of suet can be increased up to two pounds.

MINCEMEAT

Two pounds lean beef, ¾ pound beef suet, 4 pounds apples, 2 pounds candied orange peel, ¼ pound candied lemon peel, 2 pounds light brown sugar, 2 quarts sweet cider or the equivalent in fruit juices, 1 cup molasses 1 cup meat stock, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 nutmeg (grated) 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ground allspice, 1 cup preserved cherries. It must be boiled until very tender and carefully trimmed before chopping. Cook meat in boiling water until tender, adding 1½ teaspoons salt when half done. Add water as necessary and remove scum as it rises.

When meat is tender boil rapidly to reduce stock to one cup. Let meat cool in stock. When cool remove from stock and carefully trim away bits of fat, bone or gristle. Put meat through food chopper and strain stock. Mince suet. Pare, core and chop apples. Chop raisins. Put all ingredients except preserves into preserving kettle. Bring to the boiling point and cook over a low fire for about two hours, stirring to prevent sticking. Add preserves if liked. Put into sterilized cans and seal.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Dinner—Cream of lima bean soup, toasted crackers, radishes, scalloped potatoes and eggs, stewed tomatoes, banana and nut salad, baked apples and gingerbread pudding.

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND HOME INTERESTS

Love Unlocks The Door

By ANNIE S. SWAN

"I don't want to pry into your affairs, Bannerman," said Horne good-humoredly. "And surely I can trust you and him. I sincerely hope he is not seriously hurt. As soon as I've answered the more pressing of the letters, and seen Chappelle, I'll go back."

"Yes, sir."

Horne nodded, and at the moment the woman came to tell him his breakfast was ready. He sat down to it without relish, but felt better after he had eaten a few mouthfuls. The morning paper lay temptingly to hand, but he was in no mood to touch it, though by-and-bye, as he drank the last cup of coffee, he propped it up against the loaf, and ran his eye over the columns of the money market. Also he observed from the summary as he turned the pages that there had been an exciting debate in the House the previous night on a question in which he was deeply interested. While he read he was disturbed by the roll of wheels on the roadway—a most unusual occurrence, as the heavy traffic did not come that way, and he had given orders concerning the brougham, meaning to telephone when he wanted it. At the moment the telephone bell rang, and he ran to answer it, expecting the message Elsie had promised from Burton Lea.

"Professor Meiklejohn has just gone," she said clearly. "And he is quite hopeful. He says there is no serious injury, and that he wil certainly recover consciousness very shortly."

A carriage had stopped in the yard, and the next moment the door of the outer office opened to admit a most unusual visitor, his old friend, Lord Kilmartin, the father of Mary Inglis.

CHAPTER XXXIV

"You look scared to see me," observed Kilmartin dryly. "It isn't anything very serious. Can I come in anywhere?"

"Yes, here, if you'll excuse the table. I've just had my breakfast."

The law lord looked round with some curiosity as he entered the comfortable room, where there was a bright fire an a spread table.

"Do you live here Gibbie?" he asked quizzically.

"No, but I sometimes breakfast, and always lunch here," he answered, but there was no answering smile. He firmly believed that his anxieties concerning his second son were about to receive some heavy addition. No other object, he felt sure, could explain such an unusual visit.

"I wanted to see you, and as you are about as difficult to catch in business hours as I am, I thought I might find you before the day had actually begun. I'm a law to myself at present, so I had my breakfast and the brougham half an hour earlier, and took you on my way to the courts."

"Yes," replied Horne still dryly. "What do you want?"

Lord Kilmartin unfastened his immaculate overcoat, and drew an envelope from his pocket.

"A letter from Mary. It came last night. Its news is a little startling. She has broken the engagement."

For a moment Horne's relief was so great that he could have smiled.

"I'm not surprised," was all he said. "Won't you sit down, and let's talk things over?"

"It's warm in here," observed Kilmartin as he threw off his overcoat.

He was a very tall man with a clever, clean-shaven face, and a keen eye, which was known and feared on the bench.

"So you're not surprised? I confess I was. I thought things were all right. Occasionally I thought Mary not particularly demonstrative on the head of it, but she's a queer girl, not to be judged from the ordinary standpoint. But my wife kept on assuring me everything was right, and her last letter contained no hint of it. In fact, it was all about that house at Colinton she wanted me to go and see, though it's too big. That's why I never came to consult you about it."

"What's wrong, Gibbie?" asked the law lord after a moment of patient waiting for the explanation which did not come.

"I wish I knew, Bob," he answered. "I'm not surprised, and I'm glad the initiative step comes from Mary."

"You look as if something were far wrong."

"So there is, but I tell you I can't lay my finger on it. Gilbert's off the straight line, been off it for a while now, and upon my word this comes as a sort of relief for your daughter's sake. I'm sorry to have to say it about my own son, but she's far too good for him."

Kilmartin stroked his chin thoughtfully, at the same time regarding his old friend with the same penetrating keenness.

"You've positively no idea what has gone wrong? He doesn't drink?"

Horne shook his head.

"Ah!"

Kilmartin knit his brows, and the genial expression somewhat hardened.

"It sounds a bit curious. Some entanglement, I suppose, he had before the engagement, and which he can't get rid of. What fools these young men are! I'm thankful, for my girl's sake, that the breach has come now. It's—it's the sort of thing, of course, one doesn't especially want for one's girl."

His voice took a slight tremor, which betrayed the emotion beneath. It went to Horne's tender heart like a knife.

"I'd have given my right hand, Bob, to prevent this, and I can only say I'm sorry that a lad of mine should have made the trouble. I—I know nothing, but I am afraid of a good many things. Again I must say how relieved I am that the initiative comes from Mary."

"She doesn't say much," said Kilmartin, as he took the letter from its cover and opened it out. "I don't mind your seeing it. In fact, I feel that you have a sort of right to read it."

He held it out, and Horne read the few lines it contained, his face working with the feelings he could not altogether control.

"Hotel de Palais, Biarritz,
"10th April.

"Dearest Dad—I am writing again to-day, because there is something I want to tell you which I left out yesterday. I tried to tell you, but couldn't. But perhaps it is important enough to deserve a letter to itself.

"I have written to Gilbert and broken our engagement. I can't very well explain all the reasons for this step, but I know that you will believe that they are genuine enough, an dthat I have thought it well over first

"I hoped you would guess that I had some such thing in my head before I left Edinburgh. I was a coward, or I would have done it then. I don't think Gilbert will be surprised, and I can only hope he will not feel it very much. Mamma is rather angry with me. If you think you could spare a few days, dearest, do come and help me. Somehow, I don't seem able to explain it to mamma's satisfaction. Biddy is as sweet as she can be, but we don't talk much about it. Please tell Mr. Horne when you see him that the biggest regret I have in the matter is that I shall not have him for a father-in-law. Do come, dearest, soon to your little

"MOLLY."

Horne passed back the letter in silence, and for a full moment did not speak.

"I don't know what to say, Bob," he remarked at last. "In fact there's nothing to say except that Gilbert has been a confounded fool for himself, and has lost a treasure that will never come in his way again."

"He hasn't said anything to you, I suppose?" asked Kilmatrin, as he returned the letter to his pocket. "She doesn't say when she wrote the letter to Gilbert."

"It came last night, I fancy; at least, there was one lying on the hall table after the evening post. No, he has said nothing; in fact, I haven't seen him since."

He hesitated once more, because it was hard on his pride telling what had happened at Burton Lea the previous night.

"He isn't here, I suppose? I'd see him, I think, now I am here, and get it over. I don't bear the lad any grudge, Gibbie, though sometimes I never seemed to get a grip of him, and, frankly, I liked Walter best."

"He isn't here. In fact, I have no more idea than you where he is at the present moment," replied Horne, then briefly put him in possesion of the fact as they had occurred.

Kilmartin, long accustomed to dealing with the sordid side of things, grasped them in their sequence with amazing readiness.

"There's something behind, as you say. If I had to piece it out for judgment, I should say this, Gibbie. There's an entanglement, as you say. Gerard has discovered it; that, coupled with the jealousy your son has of this interloper—we must call him so in evidence—raised the very mischief in him. They had a few words, and Gilbert either defended himself or struck a blow. It's as plain as noonday. But he isn't seriously hurt, you say?"

"Meiklejohn has said so, and, of course, I am immensely relieved. I believe your view is the right one."

"I'm sure of it. Seeing him lying on the road, Gilbert probably thought he had killed him, and ran off to escape the consequences. It's a pity, but you'll keep it quiet, and don't let it get into the newspapers. I don't suppose the Gerards will bear you any grudge?"

"Oh, no. They are beyond reproach in that way, too much inclined to exaggerate the most commonplace service.

"Then you can only wait until Gerard is able to give you the facts; tfien you must get Gilbert back."

"I feel as if I never want to see him again," observed Horne gloomily.

"Nonsense! There's nothing very serious. Find out about the entanglement—cherchez la femme, wherever she is—and get the thing put on a clear basis, then we know where we are."

"I can only say how sorry I am that you should have been mixed up with such a thing, Lord Kilmartin."

"We're not mixed up," observed Kilmartin good-humoredly. "The usual par in the newspaper, and the thing blows over before they get back. I'll see that it goes to-day. I wish I could get away to Molly, but it's impossible. The first Easter I've been in Edinburgh for five years, but if I go I'll never be ready for the Lunan business, which will come on in earnest in May."

"Won't you take a cup of coffee or something?" asked Horne glancing vaguely at the table. He felt an astonishing rush of gratitude towards his old friend for the spirit in which he had take the whole affair.

"No, thank you, and don't, for heaven's sake, look so glum, Gibbie. Is there anything now in the wide world really worth pulling such a long face over? Things right themselves; they always right themselves, only give them time."

"A cheery optimism," observed Horne with a smile. "But you don't happen to have a ne'er-do-weel in your family."

"Not a ne'er-do-weel exactly, but you can hardly point to Bob as a shining light," he said with a small grimace. "I built hopes on that boy, and now he's calling the cattle home, as Mary sings. I don't like it. No, how could I? But I've got to endure it."

Involuntarily Horne held out his hand.

"Bob, I've often misjudged you. Let bygones be bygones."

"Right you are. I knew exactly how you felt about things, and I blamed my wife. After all, we've got to order our lives—our home lives, I mean—entirely on the lines the women ordain. My wife is full of this Edinburgh pride and exclusiveness. It's become part of her very being. I've got to suffer, though I'm a Bohemian at heart. I'm happy in my work, and Molly's the recompense. I'll have to write to them both, for I won't have the child worried, and if she's going to be worried I'll let the Lunan case go to the wall, and go fetch her home."

Horne nodded, and Kilmartin began to move towards the door.

"You've no idea, I suppose, what is at the back of the business—Gilbert's business, I mean," he said thoughtfully.

"Not the faintest. I was always hoping to get some light on it."

"And he's gon away. Do you think he meant going abroad or what?"

"I tell you I don't know. You have the facts just as I told them. He broke in the house last night, like a first-class burglar, made a raid on the larder, and took away some clothes. I'll find out presently about the money."

"You'll keep it quiet anyhow, for all our sakes. We don't want anything to get into the newspapers. They're perfect sharks, but we must circumvent them if possible."

"Right you are," said Horne with great heartiness.

They walked together to the brougham, and stood a moment in silence before Kilmartin got in.

"Don't lay it too much to heart, Gibbie," said the old man kindly. "I don't like to see that long face, man, it isn't natural to you."

In spite of himself Horne smiled. "I suppose I do take things too seriously," he admitted. "I'll try and remember it's all in the day's work."

So they shook hands and parted, Horne returning to his work with a better heart.

CHAPTER XXXV

Gerard was longer of returning to conseiousness than any of them expected. A week passed away, and he still lay like a log there, prone on his back, oblivious of everything passing around him.

Nothing could be done, they said, except to wait until nature did her work. But it was a dreadful experience for them all. Never had there been such an interminable week. Before it ended, Horne received a note from Lord Kilmartin, saying he was off to Biarritz, which indicated that matters were not going very well there. Biddy had not written, and there was nothing to do, except await the development of events.

Nothing either had been heard of Gilbert, and though Horne had put some watcher on the track they had not even discovered by what train he had left the city. Altogether that was a strange, uncomfortable week, full of mystery and darkness. Every day Horne called at the Cleugh Cottage, spending there, indeed, a large part of the time he should have given to Bonnygate. On the eighth day, when he arrived at the gate driving, for a wonder Elsie was watching for him, and he knew from the expression on her face there was some improvement.

"He's conscious," she said quickly. "In the middle of the night he opened his eyes and spoke to mother."

"Thank God! And what is he like now?"

"Drowsy and dazed and rather weak, but I think he's going to be all right," she answered, and a bright tear started in her eye, and stood there like a single diamond.

Many happy aspects appear in the horoscope for to-day, according to astrology. It is a day of great promise to dwellers on the earth.

Women are especially fortunate under this planetary government, which brings them many of their heart's desires, including love and admiration.

Under this sway romance flourishes and its danger lies in forgetfulness of all mercenary considerations. The young may marry in haste and ask parents to support them.

This is read as a most fortunate day for theatres. Plays of rare originality will make money, it is prophesied.

Players of the stage and screen are finally to attain something like economic security, astrologers forecast, for methods of employment are to be changed. Bohemia is to become less perilous in Wall Street.

Judges as well as merchants are to be exceedingly busy through the holiday season, it is predicted, for sensational litigation is foretold.

If the stars are to be trusted business should be well on toward recovery within a few months. Trade and commerce are under the most stimulating influences.

There is a sign believed to presage increased interest in lands and some sort of novel colonization project is forecast.

Uranus continued to affect the Queen of England, who may be anxious regarding the health of members of her family.

Grandmothers should find this a most fortunate day, bringing to them honors that would have astonished former generations.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of far-reaching plans and general good luck. Small losses through frauds may be troublesome to many.

Children born on this day probably will be proud and ambitious yet endowed with fine intellects. Many subjects of this sign have psychic gifts.

Justin McCarthy, successful author, was born on this day, 1830. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Dugald Stewart, 1753, Scottish philosopher, and George Eliot, 1819, famous English novelist.

Plenty of Activity Keeps Stars Trim

By ROBERT GRANDON

Hollywood, Nov. 14—Down at Malibu Beach frolicking with the gang last week-end, it struck me that there's lots of sense in the way these folk of the screenies go at their diversions . . . for it's by their offtime play that they keep fit for ontime work.

Joel McCrea . . . browned from the Hawaiian sun . . . frolicked on the sand . . . and the Del Rio exhibited her shapely comeliness in a scant bathing suit not far away . . . Leila Hyams is another swimming addict, as is Bette Davis, who used to be a lifeguard . . . Water sports keep these in trim.

Sally Eilers keeps in form on the tennis courts and plays championship sets . . . Marion Devies is another who turns to this amusement for exercise, while John Gilbert is one of the best players in the colony . . . Badminton, with its feathered shuttlecock, prepared John Miljan for his villainy.

Bob Montgomery plays polo but for real exercise he takes to boxing in the gym, as does George Bancroft, who used to be a navy champion, and George Raft, who did box-fighting professionally long since . . . George wields a mean bat, too, in reminiscence of his pro baseball days, and takes part in the baseball games along with Buster Keaton and Joe E. Brown . . . Joan Crawford and Helen Twelvetrees turn to a bicycle to gain foot action and drive avoirdupois away.

Keeping fit is a big item in screenie success . . . For the women, it means a svelte form and more engagements . . . and for the men . . . well, it keeps them out of mischief.

DAIL TEST

Dublin, Irish Free State, Nov. 21.—(Associated Press)—President Eamon de Valera's eldest son, Vivian, may be a candidate for the Dail Eireann if, as was expected to-day, the government decides to hold an election in Waterford and ast Cork in the near future. He has already displayed gifts as a speaker. Such action is likely to force a Cosgrave opposition party move in Donegal and thus the security of the Valera Government may be determined before Christmas.

Uncle Wiggily's Thanksgiving Turkey

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Such wonderful smells as there were in the kitchen of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow! Such jolly beating, stirring and whirring sounds! Such happy jumping, running, squealing, laughing and shouting!

No wonder the rabbit gentleman stood at the top of the stairs as he was getting ready to slide down the banister railing to breakfast and twinkled his pink nose.

"What's going on down there Nurse Jane?" called Uncle Wiggily.

"Why do you ask?" inquired the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Well, I thought maybe some of the Bad Chaps had broken in," said Mr. Longears with a laugh, for he could

"Oh, no Bad Chaps!" laughed Nurse Jane.

"Then why all the jolly noise?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"It's Thanksgiving," said Mrs. Longears. "Nurse Jane and I are making cake, puddings and pies for Thursday."

"Well, are the cakes, puddings and pies jumping up and down and laughing and shouting and making all manner of merry noises?" asked the rabbit uncle.

"Oh, no," said the muskrat lady. "Those are your little bunny boys and girls showing how happy they are because Thursday is Thanksgiving when they don't have to go to school and when they can have something like a play party here in the bungalow."

"I see," said Uncle Wiggily. "But I hope my bunny boys and girls remember that Thursday is for giving thanks for all the good times they have had all the year, and not just for eating at a party."

"Oh, yes we remember that, Unkle Wig," said Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit. "We'll be thankful."

"All right, then go ahead with getting ready for Thanksgiving," said Mr. Longears, and he slid down the stair banister railing and ate his breakfast. It wasn't much of a breakfast, for Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears were so busy making good things for Thursday that there was little time to cook anything for Monday.

But Uncle Wiggily didn't care. He was going adventuring and this always made him happy. He twinkled his pink nose and hopped out of his bungalow. Baby Bunty saw him and said:

"Don't you want me to come with you, Unkle Wig?"

"Why, yes, of course I do, Bunty," answered the rabbit gentleman. "What makes you ask that?"

"I thought maybe you would rather have Little Bub, the rainbow boy or Little Bab, the red-cheeked girl.

"Oh, I like the rainbow children," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh, "but I also love you, Bunty. So hop along."

Baby Bunty hopped along with the rabbit gentleman, over the fields and through the woods, up hill and down hill. It was rather a cool day, as generally happens when it is nearly Thanksgiving, that is, in Woodland, near the Orange Ice Mountains, where Uncle Wiggily lived.

"What kind of an adventure are you going to have, Unkle Wig?" asked the little orphan rabbit as they hopped along.

"I don't know" answered Mr. Longears. "I never can tell what kind of an adventure I am going to have until it happens and then sometimes I don't really know. We shall just hop along, Bunty, until we hear a noise in the bushes, or something like that, and then—"

"Hark!" suddenly exclaimed the little orphan rabbit.

"What is it?" asked Uncle Wiggily in a whisper.

"I heard a noise in the bushes—or something," said Bunty in a low voice.

"What bushes?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"Those right over there," and Bunty pointed to a clump not far away. The bushes were shaking and rustling and, surely enough, a noise was coming out of them.

"Maybe it's a Bad Chap," whispered Bunty.

Just then something big, with a red face and fluffy feathers, jumped out of the bushes and gobbled and said:

"Don't be frightened Uncle Wiggily and Bunty. I'm only the Thanksgiving Turkey and I won't harm you. But hide me! Oh, hide me!"

"What for?" asked Bunty.

"I'll tell you," gobbled the Turkey, but before he could tell there was a queer sound over the trees and the Turkey poped back into the bushes. And what happened next I'll tell you to-morrow. Then the story will be about Uncle Wiggily and the barrel. But please don't let the canary bird take the hen's eggs and try to hatch out a monkey.

Grace Line Opens Victoria Office

Officials Prepare to Greet Ss. Santa Rosa, First Ship of Fleet, December 18

Local Transportation Men Call and Send Flowers on Occasion of Formal Opening

In a handsomely equipped new office, overflowing with congratulatory baskets of late autumn flowers, the Grace Line, which is to link Victoria in its first direct steamship service to New York, formally took its place on the "transportation row" of Government Street to-day. All day there were callers at the offices who congratulated the officials of the line on the enterprise shown in the opening of the new offices here and the routing of the four new ships to Victoria.

The new office is situated at the corner of Government and Courtney Streets, immediately opposite the Post Office Building. Transportation men of Victoria and others interested in the new service sent baskets of flowers and called at the offices to-day. W. D. Vanderbuilt, Northwest manager for the Grace Line, and Charles S. Long, Northwest passenger agent from Seattle, were in Victoria to-day in connection with the opening of the new office, and were assisted in receiving the callers by Harold Husband, general agent in Victoria, and Dick Raymond, passenger agent.

MANY PASSENGERS

Mr. Long said the Ss. Santa Rosa, the first of the four new liners, sailed from New York last week for Victoria and Seattle, by way of the Panama Canal and way ports. There is a capacity list of passengers on board, he said, and a good number will disembark at Victoria when the ship reaches the Rithet piers on December 18 at 9 o'clock in the morning.

A party of movie folk from Los Angeles plan to come to the northwest aboard the Santa Rosa. The personnel has not yet been made up but it is expected it will include several well-known stars. It is possible the movie party may disembark here and spend a day or two on Vancouver Island before going to Seattle.

Two days after her call here, the Santa Rosa will be back, on her return to California and New York. She will take about 100 passengers from northwest ports on her first return voyage, Mr. Long stated. There will probably be several Victoria and Vancouver people in this number.

The fourth ship of the new fleet, the Santa Elena, will be launched on the Atlantic Coast at the end of this month. She will be placed in service in April. Following the Santa Rosa will be the Santa Paula and the Santa Lucia.

Ports of call on the new service will be San Francisco, Los Angeles, Mazatlan, San Jose de Guatemala, La Libertad, Punta Arenas, Balboa, Cristobal, Puerto Colombia, Havana and New York.

CONSUL OFF FOR JAPAN

Hon. T. Hachiya, Retired Japanese Consul in Vancouver, Left Here Saturday

"I do not know where I shall be sent after my holiday in Tokio, but I hope I will come back to Canada some day. I have enjoyed my term of office in Vancouver very much and I hope to visit British Columbia again before long."

This was the parting message of Hon. Teruo Hachiya, for the last nine-teen months Japanese Consul in Vancouver, just before he sailed for his native land on board the Ss. Empress of Japan Saturday afternoon. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hachiya.

An impressive farewell was given by the Japanese colony and members of the Japan Society in Vancouver before the Empress of Japan sailed from the mainland port Saturday morning. G. V. Greer, president of the Japan Society, presented Mr. Hachiya with a handsome traveling bag as a token of appreciation.

While the Japan was in port here the late afternoon several members of the local Japanese colony called on Mr. and Mrs. Hachiya in their suite on board and said au revoir to them and wished them an enjoyable holiday in Tokio.

Before going to Vancouver as consul a year and seven months ago, Mr. Hachiya was second secretary to the Japanese Embassy in Washington, D.C. Now in charge of the Japanese Consulate in Vancouver is Masaji Nonoura, who has been vice-consul during Mr. Hachiya's regime.

Keating

The South Saanich Women's Institute met at the Keating Temperance Hall on Thursday evening with Mrs. A. Sutherland in the chair. The members agreed to co-operate with the Farmers' Institute in the annual country store and dance, to be held in the Temperance Hall on December 16. A committee will meet the farmers to-morrow at the hall to make final arrangements. The committee will include Mrs. R. Nimmo, Mrs. W. D. Michell, Mrs. H. Lawrie, Mrs. L. Styan, Miss Sutherland and Miss Alice Styan. Refreshments were served by Misses B. Butler and Alice Styan.

The South Saanich Farmers' Institute met on Thursday in the Temperance Hall, Keatings, with W. D. Michell presiding. The following committee will make arrangements for the country store and dance: W. McNally, G. Malcolm, W. D. Michell, G. Spencer, D. Simmo, N. Richardson and A. Sutherland. A pruning class will be held in January. J. B. Grant gave a talk on marketing. Messrs. Ballantyne and Martin of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce inquired if their organization could be of marketing assistance to farmers. The visitors thought good could be accomplished by promoting use of home-grown produce. Victoria was the only market the farmers had and whatever was realized for produce was spent in the city. They were accorded votes of thanks. Refreshments were served by the Women's Institute.

SHAW TO MAKE WORLD CRUISE

"G.B.S." and Mrs. Shaw to Be Among Passengers on Ss. Empress of Britain

London, Nov. 21.—George Bernard Shaw and Mrs. Shaw will be among the many distinguished passengers on the world cruise of the liner Empress of Britain, it was learned here this morning. The famous Irish dramatist and his wife plan to join the cruise liner at some Mediterranean port in the middle of December. The Empress of Britain will sail from New York December 3 on her second cruise of the world.

"G.B.S." will thus visit the United States for the first time, if he remains aboard the ship for the entire cruise for the Empress of Britain's itinerary will take her to San Francisco and Los Angeles in March.

"What I want to do," he said today, "is to get into a ship and get down to some hard work. There is nothing like getting aboard a ship if one wants to combine rest with hard work." He has plans for a real pleasure cruise too, Mrs. Shaw said. With the other passengers from the Empress of Britain, they will spend Christmas in the Holy Land and will have New Year's Eve in Cairo.

They are particularly interested in China and Shaw wants to fly over the Great Wall and the Ming Tombs in an airplane, he said this morning.

MAN BATTLES POLICE; ENDS LIFE

Associated Press

Cincinnati, Nov. 21—Climaxing a desperate gun battle with more than twenty officers, James Burris, thirty-five, who, officers said, had committed three murders, yesterday ended his career by suicide.

Trapped in a house in the centre of the small town of Mount Orab, thirty miles east of here, Burris shot himself through the temple while deputy sheriffs from three Ohio counties and detectives from Indianapolis stormed the dwelling with a machine gun, rifles and tear-gas bombs.

TWO LINERS DUE TO-NIGHT

Empress of Asia Delayed By Storms; Dorothy Alexander in From California

Big Cargo of Japanese Oranges Due Here Next Week By Ss. President Madison

Two passenger liners, one from the Orient and the other from California ports, will keep Rithet piers busy for several hours late this afternoon and this evening.

Further delayed by stormy weather off the West Coast of Vancouver Island it will be 5 o'clock this afternoon before the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia reaches Rithet piers from ports in the Philippine Islands, China and Japan.

Capt. A. V. R. Lovegrove, R.N.R., commander of the liner, reported by wireless this morning that he will bring his ship into William Head quarantine station at 4 o'clock. She was originally scheduled to arrive here early this morning.

The Empress of Asia has cargo and passengers for this port. Included in the cargo is the season's first consignment of Japanese oranges for local merchants. After completing local business the liner will proceed to Vancouver as soon as possible. It is hoped to have her at the mainland port before midnight.

FROM SOUTH

At 8 o'clock this evening the Pacific Steamship Company's liner Dorothy Alexander is due at the Rithet piers from San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco. She will remain here until midnight before proceeding to Seattle. Most of the passengers disembarking here will transfer to the Ss. Princess Joan, sailing at midnight for Vancouver.

When the Ss. President Madison docks in Victoria a week from to-morrow she will spend fourteen hours in port discharging 100 carloads of Japanese oranges, according to word received in Victoria this morning from Seattle offices of the American Mail Line. The oranges after being taken off the Madison here, will be loaded onto cars and a special steamer will be rushed to Vancouver for transshipment to Canadian prairie and eastern points. The President Madison is due ETAOIN SHRDLU LU-LU son is now at sea off the Japanese coast, having sailed away from Yokohama on Saturday last.

JAPAN LIKES FOREIGNERS

But Wants to Run Its Own Business, Says K. Matsukata, Business Man of Tokio

"Because Japan does not want foreigners to run her business is no reason for foreigners to believe the Japanese hate them," stated K. Matsukata, prominent business man of Tokio, who passed through Victoria Saturday afternoon on board the outgoing liner Empress of Japan. Mr. Matsukata was en route to Japan after a brief business trip to Canada and the United States.

"In the three months that I have been on this continent," Mr. Matsukata declared, "I have heard many people talk about the hostility of the Japanese for Americans in particular and foreigners in general. But I think people on this side have the wrong impression. I certainly have heard nothing about that hostility in Japan, and I think the foreigners there would be surprised at it too.

"I will admit that the Japanese want to run their own businesses, and I do not think any broad-minded American would blame us for that. But we do not resent the presence of foreigners in our country. In fact we like to have as many as possible there. We are willing to learn from them, as much about business and education and art as we can, but after learning we prefer to run our own affairs.

"I am sure no Japanese could go to the United States and run a national telephone company or electric light corporation or government railway. Of course there are foreigners in private business in Japan, but our big importers and exporters, our bank presidents and railway heads are all Japanese."

Mr. Matsukata, who is a member of one of Tokio's best-known families, preferred not to make any statement on the state of affairs in Manchuria, or Manchukuo, as the place is called now by the Japanese.

Business in the eastern part of North America is showing signs of improvement, in his opinion, and he regretted the same improvement was not taking place in Japan. The yen was never so low and it showed no sign of picking up, he said. No business man in the United States could expect Japanese business when the Japanese money was worth so little. Until the yen became normal the Japanese would buy just as little as possible in North America, Mr. Matsukata stated.

New Service Forces Out C.N.S. Vessels

Ss. Canadian Winner, Sailing From Montreal, Probably Last Ship to Call Here

Vancouver St. Lawrence Line Has Secured Contracts to Carry All B.C. Lumber

When the Canadian National freighter Canadian Winner arrives here from St. Lawrence River ports about the middle of December, it will probably be the last time she or her sisterships will call here in in the Government Marine Service. According to dispatches received here from Montreal this morning, the service is to be discontinued and the five ships, including the Canadian Winner, sold. These ships have been linking Victoria in a direct service with Montreal in the summer and St. John in the winter for some years.

Following is the dispatch which tells of the abandonment of the service:

Montreal, Nov. 21.—Abandonment of the steamship service operated by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine for the last thirteen years, between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, is forecast in shipping circles, with the sailing to-day of the Ss. Canadian Winner for Victoria and Vancouver being the last trip of the service.

Andrew H. Allan, general manager of Canadian National Steamships, yesterday, stated service could not be operated unless adequate cargoes of lumber could be obtained. If a report from Vancouver to the effect that all lumber for the St. Lawrence River area was to be shipped in vessels of the Vancouver-St. Lawrence line proved correct, the Canadian National Steamships would cease operation on that route, he said.

The report, corroborated by Furness, Withy & Company Limited, agents in Montreal for the new Vancouver-St. Lawrence line, indicated the Canadian Transport Company Limited had entered into an agreement with the St. Lawrence River lumber conference to freight all lumber shipped by water to the St. Lawrence area. The Vancouver-St. Lawrence line is a subsidiary of Canadian Transport, which is closely associated with the H. R. Macmillan lumber companies.

Estimates were made that a total of 50,000,000 feet of British Columbia lumber would be moved to eastern Canada next season in vessels of the new steamship line, which carried between 30,000,000 and 40,000,000 feet during the season now almost closed.

The St. Lawrence River lumber conference consists of an association of practically all the British Columbia mills shipping lumber by water to the St. Lawrence.

Vancouver, Nov. 21.—Local officials of the Canadian National steamships have no information as to whether the service operated between the Atlantic and the Pacific Coasts is to be abandoned.

It is significant, however, that five ships of the government line are being offered for sale. The Canadian Winner, which sailed to-day from Montreal for Victoria and Vancouver, is among the five vessels up for disposal.

Tenders for the purchase of the ships close to-morrow at Vancouver and Montreal offices of the company.

JACK MARKLE BADLY HURT

Syracuse Player May Lose Sight of Eye Following Minor Hockey Game

Slashed Across Face By Earl Roche, Windsor; Canadian Team Suffers 8 to 3 Loss

Syracuse, N.Y., Nov. 21.—Syracuse drubbed Windsor 8 to 3 in an International League game here yesterday evening, but the Stars may lose Jack Markle, Star right-wing, as a result of the fierceness of the battle. Markle was slashed across the face by Earl Roche in the second period and may lose the sight of his eye. He was taken to hospital, with a hemorrhage and eye specialists gave an unfavorable report.

Windsor was outplayed from the start as the Stars picked up a two-goal lead in the first period. Thoms tallied on an assist from Capt. Savage after two minutes, and the Bulldogs were never able to even accounts.

Detroit, Nov. 21.—Johnny Clark, Detroit's slender young goal-minder from Regina, turned back repeated thrusts by the London Tecumsehs yesterday evening, and almost single-handedly gained a 1 to 1 tie for his team in a rough overtime match before 4,500 spectators.

Clark's continuously perfect goaling—he failed to stop only one drive, that on Tory Gregg early in the first period—shone out in a ragged Olympic performance, in which a weak defence repeatedly let Tecumseh wingmen through for drives at the net.

The lone Detroit goal came early in the second period, while Carrigan and Hicks of the Tecumsehs were serving penalties.

Fort Erie, Ont., Nov. 21.—Frank Nighbor's Buffalo Bisons showed a return to championship form Saturday night as they soundly trounced Windsor Bulldogs 4 to 1, and captured second place in the International League standing.

Lloyd Gross, left wing for the herd, drove in three of the Bison goals and made the play which allowed Roter Roth to score the other. The Bisons for the first time this season were at the limit strength of thirteen men, having added Bud Jarvis, former Pittsburgh and Philadelphia player, to their roster.

Mickey Blake scored the only Windsor goal in the third period.

Boston, Nov. 21.—Buck Buckles, one of the Boston Cubs' new forwards, is the hero to-day of the local entry in the Canadian-American League team. Taking a pass from Connie King he notched a pretty goal to give the Cubs a 3 to 2 victory over the Providence Reds Saturday night.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 21.—New Haven Eagles dropped their third successive game of the Canadian-American Hockey League season yesterday evening, losing to Boston Tiger Cubs by 3 to 1, after taking an early lead.

VOLUMES ON EDUCATION

New Books and Standard Works at Victoria Public Library; Magazines Also Listed

National Education Week will be celebrated next week and at most schools parents will be asked to visit classes and old pupils will go back to their old schools for celebrations. The following books on education may be obtained at the Victoria Public Library and will prove of interest to the ordinary layman as well as to teachers and scholars:

"Toward a New Education," by Boyd and MacKenzie, is a report of the proceedings of the international conference of the New Education Fellowship held at Elsinore, Denmark, in August, 1929, and attended by a great number of educators from all parts of Europe and America. The digest of the points made in 350 addresses at the conference is arranged by the compiler in four parts: "Education in a Changing Civilization," "The Living School," "The Social Background of the Living School," and "New Psychology and New Education."

"Education of the Whole Man," by Lawrence Pearsall Jacks, pleads for the education of "beautiful people," people whose bodies have been educated to correspond with a liberal education of the mind—an education that will train "the whole man, mind and body together, to creative activity."

"Dangers of Obedience and Other Essays," by Harold Laski, is composed of ten papers, seven of which may be roughly classed as political and three as educational. The unifying motif is the danger of acquiescence with governmental incompetence and corruption, the failure to protest against wrong and injustice. These essays are provocative and easy to read.

"Remakers of Mankind," by C. W. Washburne, is much more than a presentation of ideas upon educational problems. In 1930, the author toured the world in order to learn from leaders in the various countries visited the ideas motivating modern education. The countries visited include Japan, China, India, the Arab nations, Turkey, Russia, Poland, Germany, France, England, as well as the United States. The book describes Dr. Washburne's travel and records his findings.

"New Education in Austria," by Robert Dottrens, is a study of the wide reforms and progressive changes in Austrian education relating it to education in the United States.

"English Tradition of Education," by Cyril Norwood, the headmaster of Harrow, outlines the present English school system and the dangers that threaten it, and contrasts the underlying principles of English education with the American.

"New Education in Europe," by Frederick William Roman, is an account of recent fundamental changes in the educational philosophy of Great Britain, France and Germany. Chapters on Scandinavia, Austria, Italy and Soviet Russia have been added to the 1930 edition.

"Making Bolsheviks," by Samuel Harper, is the result of investigations conducted in Russia in the summer of 1930. The author is professor of Russian language, literature and history in the University of Chicago.

STANDARD WORKS ON EDUCATION

"Educational Yearbook" was first published in 1924. The articles although collected in the form of a yearbook are not devoted solely to records of educational development during any one year, but aim rather to give a complete and up-to-date statement of the educational systems of the countries concerned.

"Meaning of a Liberal Education," by Everett Dean Martin, contains lectures by the director of the People's Institute in New York. The author contends "that education is a spiritual revaluation of human life" and concerns himself with answering the questions: "What is an educated person like? How does he differ from the uneducated? Does he think differently, and, if so, why?"

"Menace of Nationalism in Education," by Jonathan Scott, claims that the fundamental causes of war are psychological and that nationalistic education stimulates their development. The author illustrates this by examples taken from texts used in France, Germany and England, and suggests possible remedies.

"Determinism in Education," by William Chandler Bagley, points out the dangers to education and democracy in general, in a too wholehearted belief in the infallibility of the intelligence tests in determining learning capacity.

"Educative Process," by Bagley, applies the biological and psychological principles that underlie the theory and practice of teaching to the topics and problems commonly included under the terms general method, method of the recitation, etc. This book is one of the best contributions of its kind to the literature of educational theory.

"Democracy and Education," by John Dewey, is more than an educational treaties. The student will find in it a much-needed statement of the writer's general philosophy bringing together his views in education, psychology, theory of knowledge, ethics and social theory.

"Interest and Theory in Education," by John Dewey, is an elaboration and application of the author's well-known theory of interest which first appeared in the second Herbart Society yearbook. The present discussion, besides being somewhat more systematic and clearer than the earlier account, is of additional value in that it shows how the principle of interest applies in various forms of school activity.

"How Children Learn," by Frank Nugent Freeman, is a valuable study in applied psychology. It concerns itself primarily with a study of the native and acquired responses of children, and the significance of these for educational development and social control. The book has been prepared for use as a textbook in colleges and normal schools and for use as a reading circle book for teachers.

"Reform of Education," by Giovanni Gentile, is a scholarly work, lucid, coherent, logical and as opposed to so many "reform works," is not characterized by a plethora of glittering generalities. The author gets down to cases, points out glaring faults in our modern educational systems, and suggests plausible and practical substitutes.

"What Is It to Be Educated?" by Charles Hanford Henderson, is a stimulating, highly individualistic essay addressed to parents and teachers, on education as self-realization. The author deals with bodily and spiritual aspects of training outside the province of the public school.

"Four Essentials of Education," by Thomas Jesse Jones, are summed up as (1) Knowledge and mastery of hygiene and health; (2) Knowledge and mastery of resources and opportunities of the local physical environment; (3) Knowledge and mastery of a decent and comfortable domestic life, and (4) Knowledge and mastery of the art of education.

"Education for a Changing Civilization," by William Heard Kilpatrick, is the lectures delivered at Rutgers University. Times are changing and —in part at least—as times never changed before. These changes make new demands on education. And education must greatly change itself in order to meet the new situation. These three assertions form the topics successively discussed in the three chapters of the book.

"Education and the Good Life," by Bertrand Russell, is a series of informal talks to parents on the moral education of their children, treating such subjects as the inculcation of good habits and the elimination of bad ones, proper relations between parent and child, and when and how to introduce sex education. In a brief concluding section the author considers the later intellectual training of school and university.

MAGAZINES

The Public Library also takes a number of educational magazines. These are for the most part general and deal with the trend of modern education and have little to do with method and routine work of the teacher. Many people who are interested in schools, either directly or indirectly, would be interested in the articles by leading educationalists, such as Bertrand Russell, Smyser, Crabtree, Hale, Boyd and Joad.

The magazines are: B.C. School Magazine, B.C. Teacher, Journal of Education, Journal of the National Education Association, National Education Association Bulletin, New Era, Pictorial Education, School and Society and School Arts Magazine.

MOSCOW PAPER DENIES CHARGE

Associated Press

Moscow, Nov. 21.—The communist party organ "Pravda to-day emphatically denied the Profintern was responsible for the unemployed demonstrations in London recently.

(Sidney Job Elias, who was arrested in connection with the London riots was charged with writing a letter from Moscow to associates in England last fall which showed a direct interest of the Moscow Third International in British unemployed agitations. The prosecution said Elias was in Russia fulfilling instructions from the Profintern, which they called the section of the Third Internationale aiming to control world unemployed movements.)

Acknowledging the letter may have been writtn by Sidney Elias when he was here, the newspaper declared that if so he wrote as a private individual and not in behalf of the Profintern. It said the Profintern could no more be held responsible for the actions of individuals here than could the House of Commons for a letter similarly written to Moscow newspapers.

New York, Nov. 21.—(Associated Press)—Gangsters shot and killed Joe Fabrizio, twenty-five, in Manhattan last June. They trussed up Andrew Fabrizio, twenty-four, in a sack and dumped him out of a car dead at Harrison, N.J., last August. They got a third brother yesterday evening. Francis Anthony Fabrizio, forty.

ANDERSON AND TIN KIT DRAW

Two Clever Wrestlers Put on Interesting Match: Bylund Wins Over Niles

Des Anderson, clever Seattle grappler, and Leung Tin Kit, Chinese star, battled six rounds to a no-fall draw at the Tillicum gym on Saturday evening. In the semi-windup Bobby Bylund, Minneapolis, won two straight falls from A. Niles, Bremerton.

Anderson and Kit put on one of the finest exhibitions seen in a local ring for some time. They were both clean to the last degree, and the fans were treated to a bout featured by the use of nearly every hold in a wrestler's category. Although the pair battled furiously for six rounds, neither was able to score a single fall. In the final round Kit went through the ropes when Anderson dodged a flying tackle, but came back after a count of sixteen to complete the bout.

MANY EAGER FOR BOXING LESSONS

To meet the rush of applicants eager to learn boxing, or polish up on the knowledge of the game they have, the recently reorganized Vancouver Island Athletic Association has moved its ring from the small hall to the large hall in the old Foresters' Hall.

Classes will be held again to-night and in future instructors will be on hand Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The crowds have increased at each boxing class, and with many spectators also on hand the hall has been a hive of activity with instructors working overtime.

Although youngsters are in the majority, a number of lads with experience are seizing the opportunity for workouts. Some promising material has been discovered from heavyweights down, and some of the classes provide interesting bouts that are keenly appreciated by the audience.

POPULAR STAR PLAYING HERE

Edward G. Robinson in "Tiger Shark" Also Showing on Same Programme

The charming blonde Constance Bennett, or the Marquise de la Falaise de la Coudray, as she is known in private life, is the attraction to-day at the Capitol Theatre, in a powerful dramatic story, "Two Against the World," produced by Warner Bros.

The story is a brilliant drama of high society with a dynamic courtroom scene, in which a beautiful society girl confesses to sins of which she is not guilty. She drags her honor in the dust, in order to save her brother from the electric chair and her married sister from a scandal.

There is an unusually strong cast with Miss Bennett supported by Neil Hamilton, who although he is in love with her, is forced to prosecute her brother on a murder charge, and compelled to listen to the story of her dishonor from her own lips.

The picture is take from the popular novel by Marion Dix and Jerry Horwin and deals with a rich and proud family whose name is dragged through the mire of a scandalous criminal court battle.

AT DOMINION

JACK HULBERT

ENGLISH PAIR AT DOMINION

Jack Hulbert is now definitely placed in the front rank of the world's comedians. His subtle sense of clowning, his fascinating, rythmic dancing and jolly method of "putting over" a musical number are artistic achievements essentially his own. When he is partnered by Cicely Courtneidge (his wife) there are no limits to their exquisite foolery. They are perfectly matched in "Jack's the Boy" the new Gainsborough comedy now showing at the Dominion Theatre.

Jack Hulbert as a tyro policeman gives a wonderful performance—excellent when mixed up with traffic or crooks, and fascinating when making love and crooning a romantic song followed by some marvelous dancing. Cicely Courtneidge is great as the proprietress of a pseudo-Scottish cafe, with her delicious Cockney-cum-Scottish accent. Altogether "Jack's the Boy" is the kind of entertainment that can be seen and heartily enjoyed by everyone.

ADOLPH MENJOU AT PLAYHOUSE

Few men on the screen can wear clothes more effectively than Menjou, and his wardrobe is probably the most extensive in Hollywood.

In "Bachelor's Affairs," the Fox picture now playing at the Playhouse Theatre, he plays the role of a middle-aged, wealthy bachelor, a part that calls for many costume changes. It is a veritable fashion show, including evening clothes, sport outfits, night ensembles and afternoon and morning outfits that reveal what the well-dressed man is wearing this season.

Minna Gombell, too, appears in a number of creations that will delight the eye of women patrons of the theatre.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

John Hays Hammond, well-known mining engineer, on a visit to the set of "The Mouthpiece," the Warner Bros. picture featuring Warren William, which is showing at the Columbia Theatre to-day, commended the player for having given up the engineering career he began before the war. William had studied engineering and gone to France in the Engineering Division.

Supporting William in "The Mouthpiece," which was directed by James Flood and Elliott Nugent, is a large cast including Sidney Fox, Aline MacMahon, Guy Kibbee, John Wray, Noel Francis and many others.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Amid the exotic and colorful surroundings of Morocco, brought to the Paramount British Studios at Elstree, Miss Rama brings the full romance of the East to the screen with the intricate steps and gesturrs of her hands, which are a feature of the dance. The movement of the hands plays the most important part in the dance, each movement telling of the love story of a Siamese maid during the earliest centuries before civilization in the East.

COMING TO EMPIRE

The feature of a midnight society charity "matine," just before Christmas last year, was the first presentation of "Mischief," the British and Dominions production featuring Ralph Lynn. The Prince of Wales and Prince George were in the audience and appreciated the wealth of fun. "I enjoyed that," said the Prince as the picture ended and the distinguished audience was still applauding. Readers are to have an opportunity of seeing this mirth-provoking British picture as it is the feature of the programme at the Empire Theatre, starting next Friday. Critics are loud in their praise of Ralph Lynn in the type of role he has made famous on the screen, and there is no doubt that "Mischief" will repeat here its London success during the run at the New Gallery.

FORMER LOCAL BANKER DEAD

Richard C. Trimen, Here With Bank of B.N.A., Passes on Mainland

A large number of friends here will regret to learn that Richard Cecil Trimen, a long time resident of this city, passed away on Saturday morning at his home in North Vancouver, after a short illness.

Mr. Trimen was the youngest son of the late L. Buttress and Mrs. Trimen, and was born in England fifty-six years ago. His mother predeceased him in February of the present year at the advanced age of eighty-eight. He came to Victoria in 1890 and after completing his education here joined the staff of the Bank of British North America, then located on Yates Street, which at that time was under the management of the late Gavin H. Burns. In 1898 he went to Atlin and was one of the staff on the Bank of British North America when a branch of that institution was opened there during the days of the gold rush. After that branch was closed down he was sent to the Kootenay country and occupied responsible positions in the capacity of manager and accountant at Rossland, Trail, Greenwood and other branches.

About twenty years ago he was again transferred to the local office and soon after was appointed by the late David Doig, who was then the local manager of the main office, to open a branch at Esquimalt. He was manager of that office until the banking business of the British North America was amalgamted with the Bank of Montreal. Owing to ill-health he retired from the Bank of Montreal about ten years ago, and more recently made his home at Vancouver and North Vancouver, living with his wife a quiet and comparatively secluded life.

The late Mr. Trimen always took a keen interest in sports of all kinds, more particularly in tennis, at which he was very proficient, and for many years was a member of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club. He was formerly a popular member of the Pacific Club. Among his immediate relatives he leaves to mourn his loss, his widow; one brother, Leonard Bertram, and one sister, Mrs. Arthur J. Garesche, two nieces, Miss Gladys Garesche and Mrs. C. Lauder, all of this city.

The funeral will be held in Vancouver this afternoon.

EGGS UP FIVE CENTS IN WEEK

Veal, Pork and Ham Have Declined; Spring Lamb About Same as Last Year

B.C. fresh extra eggs, which have been rising in price for the last month, have jumped 5 cents a dozen since last Monday and to-day were quoted at 55 cents a dozen by one leading retail firm. B.C. firsts have risen three more cents to 45 cents a dozen.

Eggs are one of the very few food commodities whose prices have held up in comparison to the corresponding period last year. Toward the end of last November extras were quoted at 50 cents and firsts at 48.

"Meat prices are now at rock bottom. The farmer gets little more than his grub and our margin is practically negligible," said a leading retailer to-day.

"There is little likelihood of them changing much either way at present, though some people have hopes that the agreements recently reached at Ottawa will finally have a beneficial effect on prices. This, of course, will happen if the export trade is enlivened."

The decrease is particularly noticeable in veal, where prices are off approximately 5 cents a pound on most cuts and off 10 cents a pound in the case of fillets. Rumps are off 5 cents and shoulders from 4 to 7 cents.

Pork prices have also weakened considerably, the average decline on most cuts being around 20 per cent. Ham, quoted last November at from 30 to 35, is now placed at 20 to 25, and bacon, formerly 25 to 45, is now 15 to 35.

Spring lamb has held up well and prices are only slightly softer than during November, 1931. Beef, like lamb, does not show the same weakening as veal and pork, but here again there is little in the price listings to encourage the farmer.

SUGGEST TREES BE ILLUMINATED

Ald. J. A. Worthington Suggests Competition to Chamber of Commerce

A move to have illuminated outdoor Christmas trees here during the festive season was broached by Alderman John Worthington before directors of the Chamber of Commerce today. He suggested this decorative scheme be followed on at least one street in the residential area of Victoria in the form of a contest which would be of good publicity value to the city.

P. E. George, president of the junior chamber, stated his body would be willing to go ahead with the scheme if the directors of the senior chamber favored the project.

Alderman W. T. Straith spoke of the tree-lighting activities promoted by the junior chamber some time ago. It had cost him about $24 for a tree in his garden, he said. He suggested the electrical companies furnish the prizes for the competition.

The matter was referred to the junior chamber for investigation.

WOULD OPPOSE SALE OF C.N.R.

Ontario Liberal Association Scores Bennett Government's Employment Failure

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Strong condemnation of the present Conservative administration in Ontario was expressed in resolutions approved unanimously by the Ontario Liberal Association's convention here Saturday.

One resolution which met with unanimous approval "strongly condemned the refusal of the present government to assume the entire cost of provincial highways, the full provincial share of old age pensions, and the full cost of mothers' allowances."

The convention also went on record in the same resolution as "condemning the government's policy of inflicting unwarranted taxation on municipalities of this province without their consent, to meet responsibilities incurred by the province." It declared the need for "a more equitable division of the cost of country roads."

Another resolution declared the Ontario Liberal Association is "unalterably opposed to any sale or gift of the National Railways to private interests," and deplored "the abysmal failure of the Government of Canada to deal with the present problem of unemployment."

T. B. McQuesten, who had been acting president, was chosen as president for the next year.

PERSECUTED SAYS GRETA GARBO

Malmo, Sweden, Nov. 21.—Back in Sweden after a short trip to London and Paris, Greta Garbo expressed disgust to-day with the manner in which she said she was "persecuted" in those cities.

Her life, she said, had been made a "misery," and her holiday lost any of the value it might otherwise have had. Greta Garbo used a black wig horn-rimmed spectacles and other state properties in efforts to avoid curious crowds in the European capitals. But Parisians found out where she was staying in that city and hundreds besieged her hotel.

EDUCATIONAL ADVANCE TOLD

Development of Free Schools Outlined to Gyro Club

J. W. Gibson Gives Address on "School and the People"

Declaring that New England had instituted free education in 1642 because it was necessary to the progress of the state, and that British Columbia stood in first place among the provinces of Canada in regard to its system of free education, J. W. Gibson of the Provincial Department of Education, this afternoon told the Gyro Club at the Empress Hotel of the development of free education in North America.

The address was the first of a series to be given during the week before the various luncheon clubs and service organizations of Victoria, as a part of the observance of Education Week in Victoria. Mr. Gibson was introduced by Richard Lipsey, president.

Mr. Gibson anticipated "Education Week" would be highly successful in British Columbia, good results having attended similar annual celebrations in other provinces. Touching upon assertions that "the common people are jealous of their schools," Mr. Gibson said the first system of free public schools on this continent was opened in New England in 1642. The law which created the system said all attending must be between ten and sixteen years of age and law and religion were stressed as items of the curriculum. The personal interest of the child was not the principal basis of that innovation of state financed compulsory education. The New Englanders had set up the system because they were convinced that the state would suffer if such education were not given.

Mr. Gibson told of the first free schools of Ontario and said the first free schools on Vancouver Island were initiated in 1865. In 1868 the people of Victoria paid their first school tax bu refused to pay the tax the following year. In 1872 there were 534 children between five and sixteen years of age in the public schools of Victoria and 1,768 children eligible in the whole province.

John Jessup, principal of the Victoria schools system, was praised by Mr. Gibson. He had been a great man and one of the first to point out that the cost of maintaining a criminal a year was vastly greater than educating a child through school age.

GREAT NUMBERS INVOLVED

In Canada there were now 2,500,000 students in the schools, 85 per cent being in the elementary schools, 13 per cent in the secondary schools and 2 per cent taking higher training. There were 84,000 teachers, and 32,300 schools, the cost of education being $165,000,000 annually.

Mr. Gibson said the future could be faced with confidence if the education of the children was properly provided for. The country was full of riches and wealth would be pouring out as the years passed.

Education had become an extremely involved social process, because people desired their children to obtain the best training available. Education had become formal in the opinion of the speaker; too formal in some respects. Some of the major objectives of education had been overlooked.

A recent educational survey had placed health at the head of a list of seven objectives. Second came fundamental processes with home membership in third place, and vocational training fourth. Civic education was fifth in value and worthy use of leisure was given sixth place. Last but not least was placed development of ethical character.

Touching upon district interest in schools Mr. Gibson praised the pride of a Scottish townsman whose greeting to an inquiring friend was: "Have you seen our school?" Such an interest was a timely comment upon the objectives of Education Week be considered.

Mr. Gibson believed British Columbia had teachers as fine and as well trained as any in Canada and said an eminent justice had recently placed British Columbia at the head of all the provinces.

He warned against any tendency towards having a good thing and sealing it up, instead of progressing upward and onward.

DEPRESSION DAYS

He quoted wit happroval a United States authority who advocated increase of educational facilities in times of depression. Dr. Henry Van Loon of England had advocated development of the intellectual integrity of the teachers and in endorsing this view Mr. Gibson said it would be for historians to say whether or not, at the present moment, the world was in the midst of a great revolution.

"The common people are jealous of our schools; they are the most democratic institutions we have. When the Titanic went down men heard the call, 'women and children first,' and stood aside. So to-day must we say, 'The children come first,'" he said, telling of French schools being kept open almost within the firing lines in the Great War.

POLICE HUNT DARING THUGS

Store in Vancouver Held Up By Two Bandits and $222 Taken

Vancouver, Nov. 21.—Two armed men held up the store of the Dominion Electric Company on Granville Street at 9 this forenoon and escaped with $222, according to a report to the police by William Nemetz, manager.

Mr. Nemetz said he was alone in the store when two men entered. Thinking they were customers, he approached and said, "Good morning."

"Good morning, nothing! Look at this," retorted one of the men, whipping out a revolver.

While his companion guarded the doorway the gunman forced Mr. Nemetz to open a desk containing the cash. The bandit seized the money, fled to the street and leaped into a waiting automobile.

Police were summoned and for two hours searched for the car, which was reported to have been seen in the Kitsilano district.

PIER ISLAND'S POPULATION GROWS

Canadian Press

New Westminster, Nov. 21.—Loaded down with bundles of clothing and food, and chanting songs, about forty Doukhobor women arrived here by train from Nelson to-day. They were taken by buses to the Oakalla jail to await removal to Pier Island north of Saanich Peninsula, to join other Doukhobors sentenced for nude parading.

The women were brought here owing to lack of accommodation for them in the Nelson jail during the winter. Many of them greeted Police Inspector Forbes Cruickshank, Vancouver, who was formerly at Nelson.

MRS. R. MORAN DIED YESTERDAY

Special to The Times

Seattle, Nov. 21—Mrs. Melissa E. Moran, wife of Robert Moran, former mayor of Seattle and shipbuilder here, died yesterday evening at a hospital. She had been ill more than a year. Her daughter, Miss Nellie Moran, and a nurse were at the bedside.

The widower was notified at the family estate at Rosario, Orcas Island, where he and his wife retired from Seattle business and social life in 1906. Cincinnati Reds Are Truly Termed "Graveyard of Baseball Managers

Several Cincinnati Clubs Have Been Bad Enough To Be Real Funny

WHEN it was announced that Donie Bush had sold himself down the river from Minneapolis to Cincinnati for a one-year term as manager, the news dispatches invariably referred to the team as "the lowly Reds" and went even so far as to call Cincinnati a "graveyard of baseball managers."

Looking back over the tragic years of Cincinnati baseball, those terms seem right in more ways than one. The Reds have often been colorful. Some of the worst of the Red teams since 1900 have been so bad they were funny. And the best teams fought to a goal that inevitably proved tragedy.

COMING OF MATTY

Since 1900, which year may be said to have marked the beginning of modern big league baseballs, the Reds have finished in the cellar five times.

They have won one pennant and one world championship in all those years, and that was in 1919—and an anti-climax.

The Reds have won the title of "lowly," yet more often than not in the five years since 1900 they have been in the thick of the fighting, especially in the golden decade of Cincinnati baseball that began with the coming of Christy Mathewson in 1916.

Buck Herzog was a great ball player, but a failure as a manager. Shortly after mid-season in 1916 he went to the New York Giants in a deal whereby Big Six became the Reds' manager.

Matty took an eigth place ball club, developed its pitching, brought the team into the first division the following year and Cincinnati went wild with baseball enthusiasm.

Matty did not remain to see his hopes of 1917 realized. Illness took him away from the team in mid-season of 1918, and Heinie Groh was named acting manager. Under Groh the boys battled their way into third place in 1918.

Mathewson went to Europe in search of health. Pat Moran was named manager for the following year, the year in which the Reds were to win their only flag and a world championship that was to be clouded by Chicago White Sox disgrace.

Memories of Cincinnati bring back Jim Thorpe and how his bat beat the New York Giants out of three games the year after McGraw sent him down the river. Garry Herrman, a Cincinnati printer boy, who was to come with the Reds to the height of baseball affluence and power and to end his days in obscurity, living on a pension awarded by his union.

Yes, and Pat Moran's keen disappointments in 1922 and 1923 when the Reds ran as bangup second to the Giants, and his death in spring training camp in 1924, and the struggles of Jack Hendricks through the following five years, ending in Hendricks' dismissal when the team drifted back into seventh place in 1929.

Sidney Weil, coming along with scads of money and ready to pour it into the Reds to make them a pennant-winner again, Weil dropping a terrific bundle of cash in this bank crash and that, but game to the core and ready to stake his last shirt on the Reds.

Rangers Display Mid-season Form in Breaking Champions' String of Wins

Maroons Lead In Canadian Section

Chicago Black Hawks Outspeed Canadiens For 2 to 1; Ottawa Defeats Detroit

Chicago Black Hawks swooped to their second-straight triumph and a tie with Boston Bruins for leadership of the United States section of the National Hockey League with a smart 2-to-1 win at the expense of Montreal Canadiens. Yesterday evening's victory followed close on the 3-to-1 decision over the Stanley Cup holders, Toronto Maple Leafs.

A smashing 7-to-0 defeat of Toronto by Lester Patrick's New York Rangers featured the other half of Sunday night's two-game bill.

Rangers' splurge broke the Leafs' string of successive wins over the blueshirts at seven and threw them into a tie with New York Americans for second place in the international section standing.

Montreal Maroons leaped into first place in the Canadian section with a thrilling 4 to 1 overtime victory over New York Americans Saturday night.

While Maroons were winning at Montreal, Ottawa Senators made it a clean sweep for home teams over the week-end by throwing Detroit Red Wings for a 2 to 0 loss.

HAWKS ARE SPEEDY

Peerless Howie Morenz was the only Canadien to match the Black Hawks' speed at Chicago. All the goals scored came inside of three minutes in the second period. Tommy Cook scored the Hawks' first goal. Vic Ripley went through unassisted for the second Chicago score before Howie Morenz blazed a path to the Chicago nets and scored with the aid of right-wing Johnny Gagnon.

Toronto were overwhelmed by the brilliant passing plays of the Rangers at New York, who were aided when Andy Blair scored one of their first-period goals, attempting to clear. Ossie Osmundson got credit for the goal and Butch Keeling an assist.

Rangers led 4 to 0 at the end of the first period, added another in the second and two more in the third. Bill Cook led the sharpshooters with two goals.

New York, Nov. 21.—New York Rangers gained a share of revenge for their defeat in the Stanley Cup finals last spring by overwhelming Toronto Maple Leafs yesterday evening with the highest score of the young National Hockey League season 7 to 0.

The Rangers, opening their home season, were distinctly "on" their game and they got most of the breaks while the Leafs merely played hard, fast and rather ragged hockey of the typical early season brand. A crowd of 14,000 attended.

Andy Blair, Toronto centre, sent the fourth Ranger goal into the net by accident as he tried to clear the puck and credit was given to Osmundsen. In the second period, Lorne Chabot, Leaf goalie, wandered too far from his net and when Murray Murdoch bodychecked him, as this year's rules permit, he retaliated with a slam over the head. Both were penalized. Charlie Conacher stepped into the Toronto net and stood off a furious attack, making six official saves.

SUMMARY

First period—1, Rangers, Boucher (Somers-Johnson) 6.06; 2, Rangers, W. Cook (F. Cook-Boucher) 7.20; 3, Rangers, Voss (Siebert-Dillon) 11.41; 4, Rangers, Osmundson (Keeling) 13.07.

Penalties—Day (2), Horner (2), Johnson, Heller, Doraty.

Penalty—Cotton.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Chicago's surprising Black Hawks outskated Montreal Canadiens here yesterday evening and sent the Flying Frenchmen down to a 2 to 1 defeat in a National Hockey League contest. They would have won by a wider margin but for the brilliant goalminding of George Hainsworth.

The Hawks were too fast for the team supposed to pack more sheer speed than any team in hockey, but they managed to break through for goals only in one furious assault in the second period. Tommy Cook rammed in the first after a passing bout between Jenkins and McFadyen had carried play in front of the Montreal net.

Two minutes later Vic Ripley stepped alone through the Canadien defence to tally another. Howie Morenz got one goal back, taking Johnny Gagnon's pass to score from close range, but the flashing Canadien centre was unable to get another, though his wild

EARL SEIBERT IS SUSPENDED FROM HOCKEY

Action Follows Refusal of Seibert to Accept Terms With N.H.L. Club

New York, Nov. 21.—Earl Seibert, defenceman of New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, has been suspended from all activities in organized hockey it was announced here yesterday evening by Frank Calder, president of the league.

Born in Kitchener where he learned his early puck chasing, oddly enough it is another Kitchener boy, Otto Heller, who answered Patrick's needs and now is regarded a permanent fixture on the Ranger rearguard.

NANAIMO AND SAINTS DRAW

Battle to 2 to 2 Deadlock in Pacific Coast League Football Match Up-island

Nanaimo, Nov. 21.—St. Andrew's retained their position at the head of the Pacific Coast Football League by virtue of a 2 to 2 draw here yesterday with Nanaimo before 2,000 spectators. Although having an edge on the play for the first twenty minutes the Saints were lucky to share points, Nanaimo being more aggressive throughout. Referee Craig was booed during the entire game.

Features of the game were the brilliant defence play of Edmunds, local back, and a goal scored by Surtees for the Saints in the first half.

Kicking off, St. Andrew's attacked, and Nestman missed open goal with only Blewett to beat. Keeping up pressure they forced three corners but could not score. Nanaimo's passing was poor and the team seemed disorganized with Knight, regular centre half, absent from lineup. After twenty minutes' play, Watchorn led movement and had hard luck with a long drive. Ten minutes later Bevis bungled and Surtees securing drove in a beautiful shot completely beating Blewett, giving St. Andrew's the lead. Nanaimo fought hard to equalize, White hitting side of the net twice. Visitors staged another attack, Blewett being called upon to save twice. The interval arrived with the Saints leading 1 to 0.

DEADLOCK SCORES

On restart, Nanaimo swarmed all over the Saints, bombarding Rabbit. Watchorn was badly fouled while dribbling through but Referee Craig ignored claim for penalty. Keeping up pressure Nanaimo equalized when White caught rebound off post and scored after fifteen minutes. The Saints were awarded free kick in the penalty area and Stephens scored. Nanaimo again attacked and with five minutes to go, McGregor made a run and scored tieing goal. Nanaimo continued to attack until final whistle.

Island Basketball Problem Still Far From Being Settled

Open Meeting Attended By Walter Hardwick, B.C. Association Official, Fails to Produce Solution; Victoria Teams May Engage in Outlaw Competition

Differences between the ruling powers of basketball in Victoria and the Upper Island were as far from settled as before following the open meeting of local players, officials and supporters at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday evening, which was attended by Walter Hardwick, secretary of the British Columbia Basketball Association. Mr. Hardwick presented his views and the stand taken by the provincial association while the Victorians told their side of the story, and at the finish both sides still retained the same opinions and the tangled problem was no closer to being smoothed over.

Victoria moguls will hold another meeting in the near future when a definite decision will be made as to what stand the leagues in this city will take. On three previous occasions they have expressed themselves as being opposed to concurring with wishes of the British Columbia body, and it is more than likely the same decision will be reached again. In that case the Victoria teams will play outlaw basketball, severing all connections with the B.C.B.A. and its affiliated group, the Vancouver Island Basketball Association.

At Saturday's meeting, which was presided over by Bill Erickson, secretary of the Victoria and District League, Mr. Hardwick was asked to address the meeting, giving a resume of the situation and present the views of the British Columbia association.

GIVES HIS CASE

The visiting official told how at the annual meeting of the British Columbia association the Victoria delegates had asked for a division of the Island, giving Victoria the right to organise as a separate district. At that meeting the local officials had stated the Upper Island were in favor of the break. It was only on this condition that the delegates had given Victoria the privilege to form another district. However, when he, Mr. Hardwick, and N. R. Porter, president of the British Columbia association, had attended the annual meeting of the Vancouver Island Association in Nanaimo, they had found the Upper Island was not in favor of the break.

Mr. Hardwick also stated that the annual meeting of the Vancouver Island association, according to its constitution, should have been held before the Vancouver session, at which time the question of Victoria breaking away would have been brought up. However, this was not done. As the Upper Island had not been represented at the British Columbia meeting and had not had a chance to present their side of the case, the provincial association decided to call a general meeting in Nanaimo. Victoria was invited to send delegates but did not do so, and as a result the motion giving Victoria the right to organize a separate district was rescinded. However, had Victoria been represented there was no doubt they would have been able to put through another motion and had it passed, giving them the power to organize their district. If such had been the case, the British Columbia association would have been perfectly satisfied as then Victoria would have put over the proposal with the Upper Island represented at the meeting.

ALSO THREATENED BREAK

"The Upper Island feel that something has been slipped over them by Victoria," Mr. Hardwick stated. "They threatened to break away from the British Columbia body if we allowed the motion as passed at the annual meeting to stand. Now Victoria is threatening to break away. In other words we are between the devil and the deep sea. The British Columbia body is only trying to reach a settlement and are not favoring anybody."

Tommy Forbes then rose to his feet and commenced hurling questions at Mr. Hardwick. He challenged the statement of Mr. Hardwick to the effect that the Victoria delegates to the annual meeting of the British Columbia body had stated the Upper Island were in favor of the break. He asked Mr. Hardwick if he and Mr. Porter felt they had done the right thing by going to the Nanaimo meeting and conducting a court of inquiry. "You were sent there to organize, not to investigate," he said. Mr. Hardwick came back with the reply, "The fact remains that we found out something was wrong."

PICK ON VICTORIA

In closing Mr. Forbes expressed the following scathing criticism: "The British Columbia Basketball Association has pulled a boner, and not being willing to admit it, wants somebody to crawfish and has picked on Victoria."

Jack Taylor, president of the Victoria and District League and vice-president of the British Columbia association, was the next speaker in Victoria's interests. In the first place Victoria had made an application and not a notice of motion in seeking a separate district at the Vancouver meeting, he said. Such being the case, there was no need of two weeks' notice, as called for by the constitution. Anyway, a vote had been taken and Victoria had won out. Mr. Hardwick replied that it was still a change of constitution and required notice of motion.

"Basketball teams of the Upper Island carried on before the organization of the Vancouver Island association and can carry on again without Victoria. We have been carrying the Island body long enough and are tired of always taking the dirty end of the stick," Taylor said.

Frank Shandley told Mr. Hardwick that in his opinion the British Columbia association had been very lax in matters regarding the Island. The parent body has known for years of the controversy between Victoria and the remainder of the Island, but never made a move to settle it until Victoria took steps to rectify the trouble.

"Chuck" and Art Chapman, Walter Yeamans and others also spoke during the evening and all expressed the opinion that Victoria should refuse to again tie up with the Upper Island.

Hodgson Nets Ball Twice In a Minute In Liverpool Win

Crack Forward Scores Three Goals in Surprising 6-1 Victory Over Derby County

Aston Villa Too Good For Arsenal

Cardiff Upsets Dope By Win Over Brentford; Bad Playing Conditions in Scotland

London, Nov. 21—Aston Villa to-day stood technically at the head of the first division of the English Football League after administering a 5-to-3 defeat to Arsenal, arch-rival for top honors. The Villans' lead, however, was a slim one based on a slightly superior goal average.

Special trains took thousands from London to Villa Park for Saturday's classic and when the starting whistle blew 65,000 persons jammed the stands.

Both goals were threatened early in the encounter. Brown, Villans' leading scorer, hit the upright with a terrific drive that had Moss standing flat-footed in the goalmouth. Soon after Jack scored for Gunners from Bastin's centre. It was his 100th goal since he joined Arsenal. Gibson, Aston Villa's pivot, tied the score two minutes later when he picked up a corner kick thirty yards out and drove it past Moss.

Houghton gave Villans the lead with a brilliant shot from thirty yards that caught a corner of the net high up. Lambert soon squared things again with a shot that was deflected by a Villa back but dropped in, just under the cross bar to leave the score at half time 2 to 2.

VILLA TOO GOOD

Arsenal fought hard to crack through the Villans' defence in the second half, but their rivals were too good. They got through once when Bastin scored to give them a temporary lead. But the Midlanders came right back. Houghton retied the score in three minutes and Mandley and Brown made victory certain.

Huddersfield Town crept closer to third place by defeating West Bromwich Albion 2 to 1, while Derby County lost to Liverpool 6 to 1. Derby scored first from Ramage's boot, but Liverpool tied the score before half time. Up to that time the game had been fairly evenly contested, but the second frame saw an amazing change when player after player swept through Derby's defence to score. Hodgson, Wright, Hodgson, Hodgson and Robers pounded the ball in in rapid succession, Hodgson scoring twice in one minute. Through its loss Derby County retained third place only by a slim superiority in goal average.

Huddersfield took first blood from West Bromwich when Bott scored well on in the first half. After a vigorous battle between the forwards, Richardson broke through to tie the score in the second half but McLean's fine solo effort assured Huddersfield of the game.

Stoke City, first team in the Second Division, was held to a scoreless draw by West Ham United, lowliest team in the division. Bradford City's 3 to 0 victory over Millwall put that team in a position to challenge the lead of Stoke City with only two points between them.

PULLS HAT-TRICK

Tottenham Hotspurs were helped in their 4 to 1 win over Chesterfield by Evans's hat-trick.

The week-end in the southern section of the Third Division saw Brentford suffer its first defeat of the season when Cardiff City, almost at the bottom of the division, beat Brentford 2 to 1 at Cardiff.

Cardiff's victory came at a surprise and only 5,000 persons had considered the game worth watching. Jones scored the Welshmen's first tally and was followed by Cribb who popped the ball in by an apparent fluke. In the second half Scott netted the ball twice for Brentford, but only one goal was allowed.

Chester and Hull City, first and second teams of the northern section, fought to 1 to 1 draw while 10,000 watched. Mantle scored for Chester in the first frame and the team hung on to that lead until the last minute when Wainscott equalized.

Glasgow, Scotland, Nov. 21.—Week-end game in the Scottish Football League saw no chances among the leaders, while fog and frost made conditions uncomfortable for spectators. The game between East Stirlingshire and Partick Thistles was called when fog rolled over the field so thickly that there seemed danger the players would get lost.

Rangers, the leaders in the First Division, scored an easy 3 to 0 win over St. Johnstone, when McPhail twice and Smith once.

Aberdeen, holder of third place, swamped Clyde 8 to 1. Mills scored three times, Moore twice, McLean, Beattie and Warnock once apiece. Nogurk got Clyde's lonely point.

Celtic retained second place with a comparatively easy victory over Cowdenbath, 3 to 0. Napier scored twice, both times on penalties, and McGrory once.

New York, Nov. 21.—Chick Devlin, San Francisco, and Ben Jeby, New York, clash in the St. Nicholas Arena here to-night for New York state recognition as middleweight champion in the opening blast of a busy week of misticuffing.

Jeby and Devlin are the sole survivors of an elimination tournament organized by Madison Square Garden. Devlin got no better than a draw, and some critics thought he was lucky to get that, in his opening match with Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg, but Battaglia withdrew over terms when a return meeting was sought. To-night's match is at fifteen rounds, the championship route.

To-morrow night, Baby Arizmendi, Mexico, recognized as featherweight champion by the California Athletic Commission, engages Varias Milling, featherweight from the Philippines, in a ten-rounder at Los Angeles. Maxi Rosenbloom, recognized in some states as light-heavyweight titleholder, continues his non-title campaign at Sacramento Wednesday night, facing Tony Poloni, Reno.

English Cricketers Collapse In Match

Are All Out For Mere Sixty Runs in Match Against Australian Eleven at Melbourne; Nagel Gives Fine Bowling Performance For Home Team

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 21.—Only a few days before the opening of their first test match against Australia, the touring M.C.C. English cricket team collapsed sensationally in their second innings against a combined Australian eleven to-day and were all out for 60 runs.

Scores at the end of the third day's play were: M.C.C. 262 and 60 (Nagel eight for 32, Oxenham two for four); All Australia 218 (Bradman 36, O'Brien 46, Larwood four for 54, Bowes three for 63 and Voce two for 56).

Nagel Australia's giant fast-to-medium bowler, earned himself a place on the Australian team for the first of the classic test matches by his remarkable bowling against the Englishmen to-day. He took only ten overs, including three maidens, to gain eight wickets for thirty-two. He was ably supported by Oxenham, who took the remaining couple of the demoralized English wickets for four.

The dismal showing of the English batmen was well displayed by totals of ten runs for Herbert Sutcliffe, joint holder of the world's double wicket partnership; three for Wyatt, six for Leyland and Allen, twelve for Paynter and five for the Nawab of Pataudi. Larwood was out for no runs.

Lead Minneapolis Six-day Bike Race on Points; Peden and Audy Are Tied For First Place; Teams Closely Bunched

Minneapolis, Nov. 21.—Closely bunched after five days of riding, the nine teams in the six-day bicycle race here began the last day with but four laps separating the last-place team from the three leaders.

Reggie McNamara and Al Crossley gained a lap yesterday evening to join Torchy Peden and Jules Audy, the Canadian team, and Bobby Thomas and Dave Lands at the head of the field. Their sprint point total of 504 gave McNamara and Crossley virtual leadership, since the Peden-Audy combination had only 478.

	Miles	Laps	Pts
McNamara-Crossley	1,991	9	504

Bays Score Fine Win Over Scots But Injuries Mar Game

Defeat Militiamen In Feature Tussle; Navy Blanks Fifth

NANAIMO SQUAD HELD TO DRAW

Gunners, Highlanders and College Senior "B" Victors; University, Scots Win

In one of the saddest days for Victoria's English rugby since Pete Ogden sustained his fatal injury playing against the New Zealand All-Blacks before the war, Johnny Rowland, smiling All-Canadian, one of the nation's finest forwards and member of numerous Victoria "rep" squads, was taken to the hospital Saturday, fighting for his life with injuries to the neck, and two other Canadian Scottish men, his teammates, Jack Bryden and Ted Colgate, were put out of the game and probably out of rugby with less serious injuries as the J.B.A.A. seniors defeated their traditional rivals the Scottish 9 to 3 at the Willows on Saturday.

In the other first division game of the day, Navy kept their line unsullied and retained the league leadership with a 13-to-0 win over the Fifth Brigade.

The Gunners staged a come-back in the senior B lists, defeating the Garrison 6 to 3, while the J.B.A.A. overcame the Scottish 14 to 3, and College blanked the Navy 12 to 0 in the other fixtures of that league. University won a 10-to-8 decision from Oak Bay Wanderers and the Scottish over-ran the Fifth Brigade 13 to 8 in the two intermediate fixtures, while a weakened Nanaimo Mosquito team was held to a 3-to-3 draw by Victoria College Intermediates.

In the disastrous game at the Willows oval, the driving thrusts of the fleet J.B.A.A. backfield through the ranks of the Scottish, demoralized by the injuries sustained by their players, accounted for their 9 to 3 victory. When Rowland had been taken from the field, following the loss of Jack Bryden, out of the game with a torn cartilage between his ribs, and Ted Colgate, who was packed off after suffering an accidental kick in the kidneys, the Highlanders lost their defensive strength, and although the Bays dropped two players, Monteski and Addison, the clansmen failed to stand up against their onslaughts.

It was a terrifically hard game, with players taking and giving bumps throughout. But unfair play did not enter into the battle. The cold wind and shower of rain which fell just before half-time worked a considerable hardships on both squads.

Starting on the attack, the Bays were repulsed from the kick-off, when the two Forbes dribbled the ball back into the oarsmen's territory. Patrick kicked clear, but the Scots returned. The troops were down on the ball on every play.

GOAD SCORES

Hunnings broke away on a pretty broken field run from his own territory and reached the Scots' twenty-five, where his pass was ineffective owing to the fact that his fellow threes were not up with him.

Patrick penetrated deep into the clansmen's territory shortly after and Dunn and Petticrew returned when the Scots cleared.

A free kick by Campbell Forbes relieved tension and the Highlanders went down with a rush. They forced a five-yard scrum between the Bays' posts, but lost the advantage when the oarsmen touched down for a safety kick.

Bryden missed a drop goal attempt as the troops returned, but they continued to press to force a five-yard scrum at the Bays' corner.

The Bays bucked back to their twenty-five. Patrick secured and punted deep into the Scots ground with an on-side kick. Hunnings followed up and took the loose ball when two Scots failed to clear. He dribbled to the line, but overran the ball. Horace Goad, right behind him, picked up and plunged over for the first try twenty-seven minutes from the start. Dunn's kick for extra points failed.

SCOTS EQUALIZE

The troops drove their way back, fighting to the Bays' five-yard line. Shortly after Campbell Forbes gained a free kick forty-five yards out when Addison played interference. He converted with a perfect boot to even the score.

A few minutes later the half-time whistle blew.

Following the Scottish's initial sortie, the Bays came back on a smart three-quarter run, Turgoose kicking to the troops' thirty-yard line. Nixon downed Bryden and the oarsmen looked dangerous. The Highlanders cleared, but in the next defensive play, Colgate sustained injuries which forced him from the game.

Patrick, Hunnings and Turgoose combined on a smart clearance play as the Highlanders returned. Patrick, Goad and Pettierew featured in the next play, which sent the ball to the Scots flag. The troops fought back to centre, but the Bays gained ground again on Hunning's kick. Pete Turgoose flashed away on a dangerous wing run, but was brought down by Copeland before he could get across.

Play swung from end to end for several minutes. Bryden, playing on with a chest injury he sustained in the first half when he fell on the ball, went down heavily in a defensive play and was taken from the field.

ROWLAND HURT

The rowing club continued to press. Deep in the Scottish ground, Bill Murray secured. He ran for the line. Boorman, who dropped back to fullback when Colgate left the field, came out to meet him. He tackled Murray about a yard from the line. Rowland, who had been playing his usual sterling game, came across and hit the two players, knocking both into touch.

Boorman had his leg twisted in the fall. When he and Murray got up, Rowland was left on the ground unconscious. It was believed he had sustained a minor head injury, but when he failed to come around after the application of ordinary methods, he was taken to the hospital by spectators, who thought he was suffering from concussion.

Bryden attempted to return to the field but was sent off and the Bays dropped two men.

From a loose scrum forty-five yards out, "Buzz" Brown, tricky J.B.A.A. stand-off half, secured and raced through the Scottish team for a try. Goad missed the kick for extra points. Shortly after, Campbell Forbes was hurt in a fall, but stayed in the game.

Patrick and Hunnings combined on a pretty play that carried the ball to the Scots' flag, where the latter was forced out.

FINAL SCORE

Following a five-yard scrum, Murray secured when the Bays heeled and passed to Hunnings on the blind side. Hunnings dashed across for the final try which Patrick failed to convert.

The teams shared play in the closing minutes.

G. C. Grant refereed, and the teams lined up as follows:

J.B.A.A.—Usher, Turgoose, Addison, Patrick, Hunnings, Brown, Murray, Dunn, Petticrew, Nixon, Monteski, Goad, Lemm, de Blacquiere and Peard.

NAVY WINS

As the result of the Navy's 13-0 victory over the Fifth Brigade at the grounds of the winners, someone has yet to be the first to cross the Navy line or place the ball between the Navy uprights. In securing their second straight shut-out victory, the boys in blue gave a clever and polished exhibition of the English oval-balled game, and though the Gunners were always fighting hard and though the forwards especially offered plenty of resistance there was never any doubt as to the eventual outcome after the opening Fifth Brigade offensive had been repulsed.

The Navy threes, Williams, McDonald, Banfield and Smith, worked together with precision, and they were given fine support in their breakaways by the two halves, Stagg and Hudson.

It was this backfield that got the counter-attack underway after the Gunners' forwards, breaking fast, had carried the play deep into the winners' territory. In fact, there would have been a try in short order if Roddy McInnes, the Fifth Brigade's fullback had not grabbed McDonald on the five-yard line with a spectacular tackle.

A scrum followed and the play drifted back to the Gunners' twenty-five yard line, at which point the Navy were awarded a free kick. Robinson, the sailors' fullback, put the ball squarely between the uprights and the score was 3-0.

ADAMS OVER

The Gunners fought back and McDonald was responsible for balking a dangerous forward rush led by Sievers. Until almost the end of the half, the game was hard fought and even, but with five minutes to go to the rest period, Navy went far into Gunners' territory and Adams, a forward, crossed the line with the pigskin nestled securely in his arms. The kick was not converted and the half-time whistle blew with the Navy leading 6-0.

The superior weight of the Navy scrum commenced to tell in the second half and it was a direct result of ground gained in forward rushes that Stagg was enabled to get close enough to the Fifth Brigade's posts to score on a drop kick.

McInnes was soon put into the Gunners' three-quarter line in an effort by Coach Douglas Roberts to slice the sailors' 10-0 lead. McInnes played a fine game in his new position as in his old, but little came of the switch. Finally, Williams crossed the Gunners' line after a backfield run and boosted the score to 13-0. The attempt at converting fell short.

The game was clean and hard fought and it is to the credit of the Fifth Brigade that, with a lighter scrum and a less experienced backfield they allowed the Navy to cross their line just twice.

Acland refereed. The teams were:

Fifth Regiment—McInnes, Skillings, Pease, Billingsley, Hadden; Stipe, Le Marquand; Rutsworth, Wharton, Buller, Dickinson, Rogerson, Crawford Sievers and Engleson.

In the curtain raiser at the Willows, the weakened Nanaimo Mosquitos, who were only able to bring down nine players, but who recruited two from their opponents, held the Victoria College intermediates to a 3 to 3 draw in an exhibition.

Robin Porter scored on a short run in the first ten minutes for College. Lionel Good equalized for Nanaimo in the second half on the completion of a three-quarter movement started by Hoggan. Neither try was converted.

Snapping up all their breaks, Fifth Brigade senior B players showed a superiority in the backfield to beat the Garrison 6 to 3 at Work Point.

Fleming opened the scoring for the Gunners, going over on a run from midfield. Syd Gaunt got across on a pass from Spencer for the second. Buxton gained the lone try for the Garrison. All kicks failed.

Bruce Lowe's sensational play brought victory to the J.B.A.A. second division squad. He scored nine of his team's points as the oarsmen beat the Scottish 14 to 3 at Oak Bay Park.

Lowe went over twice in the first half and Stewart scored once. The latter converted two tries. In the second canto Lowe raced across again. The militiamen gained their only points on a free-kick.

Playing a smart backfield game and showing up to advantage in the loose, Victoria College defeated the Navy 12 to 0 at the High School grounds. The sailors showed considerable strength in the pack, but failed to bring out any real scoring power. College went over for three tries and converted a penalty kick.

In the intermediate clash at Mount Tolmie, Poynts's conversion kick shortly before time brought University School through to a 10 to 8 victory over the Wanderers. Wanderers had a large share of the play.

Martin opened the scoring, touching down Poynts' kick in the first half. Shortly before half time Hotham got over for the Oak Bay lads. After the interval McConnan scored and Melville converted, but Dunlop equalized on a forward rush, and Poynts kicked the deciding points.

Coming from behind in the second half, Canadian Scottish offset a Fifth Brigade lead to score a 13 to 3 victory in the other intermediate game of the day.

Jack McLaughlin Wins at Nanaimo

Nanaimo, Nov. 21.—Six hundred fans saw Jack McLaughlin, Vancouver wrestler, win from "Bull" Brentena, California, here Saturday night at Pygmy Arena. McLaughlin was lucky to win when he accidentlly kicked Brentena in the jaw, knocking him out for the evening in the fourth round of a rough bout. "Bull" had Jack groggy in the third, the bell saving McLaughlin. Brentena did not recover for one hour, and a doctor had to be called. Whellins, Calgary, won from Wood, Vancouver, in a preliminary bout.

POLICE FIRE AT ARGENTINE FANS

Buenos Aires, Nov. 21.—Riverplate won the Argentine professional soccer football championship yesterday, defeating Independiente, 3 to 0. A crowd of 55,000 persons watched the struggle while another 200,000 milled around outside the field.

Police twice were forced to fire over the heads of those outside to keep order but even so three persons were wounded by shots fired from among the spectators outside the playing field. Stones and bottles were freely thrown.

Victoria's Front Line Falters and Saints Score Win

LOCAL FORWARDS AWAY OFF FORM

Teams Were Deadlocked 1 to 1 at Intervai; Kulai Drives Home Winning Goal

By the odd goal in three Vancouver St. Andrews defeated Victoria in the intercity football match in the Pacific Coast Football Association at the Royal Athletic Park on Saturday afternoon. The leaders of the first division of the Coast League won because the local forwards failed to avail themselves of the many scoring opportunities presented and not through having any edge on the play. On their chances Victoria should have won by a comfortable margin, but the home forwards were helpless when it came to scoring goals.

The match played on a muddy field attracted a crowd of nearly 1,500, which was treated to one of the finest matches witnessed here for some time. Both clubs set a dazzling pace and the brand of soccer displayed was of a fine calibre. It was unfortunate that Victoria could not have notched up a victory, but they have no alibi as the opportunities were there, especially in the second half, when Victoria had a clear margin on offensive play.

St. Andrews, making their first appearance of the season here, trotted out the finest combination of forwards and halves seen in Victoria during the current football campaign. Their front line was tricky, played pretty combination and every member packed a deadly shot. Their half-back line, composed of McNeill, Kulai and Morley, worked well together both on the defence and offence. The visiting back division was not as strong as expected and both the backs, Carter and King, and Strong in goal being far from reliable in their clearances.

PASS UP CHANCES

The Victoria team played well and if its forward line had at least scored half of the goals that were easily possible a victory would have been chalked up to the credit of the local intercity club.

Stephen and Kulai scored the goals for the Scots, while "Scotty" Stewart netted Victoria's lone counter from a penalty kick. The teams were deadlocked 1 to 1 at half-time.

St. Andrews kicked off but Victoria carried the ball back into their opponents' territory and forced a corner off King. Youson's centre was cleared by Surtees. Waugh, clever centre-forward of the Saints, broke fast and tried to split the Victoria backs, but Gibbons blocked and cleared. Waugh was nearly through again when pulled up for offside.

STEPHEN SCORES

Ten minutes after the start the Saints went into the lead when Waugh snared the ball from Gibbons near the Victoria goal and passed over to Stephen, right winger, who booted it into the high part of the net. Victoria pressed from the centre-off and Stewart sent in a low shot that forced Strong to dive full length to push the ball behind the posts. Morgan's centre from the corner was driven over the bar by Peers.

Still forcing Victoria tied the score when awarded a penalty shot. Viggers lifted a high lob into the goal mouth and Burns went in after it only to be foully charged by Carter. Stewart drove the spot shot into the net with express like speed. De Costa saved the day a few minutes later when Munro shot and the ball bounced around in the goal mouth until De Costa scooped it up and threw clear. At the other end Stewart's hook shot grazed the bar. Manson tried to barge through, but was spilled by Watt. Carter conceded a corner, but Youson centred behind. Burns was pulled up for offside when he had a good opening on a pass from Morgan. Stewart was unlucky when his terrific drive went into Strong's arms. A foot either side and it would have been a goal. Viggers shot and Strong fumbled, but Kulai dashed in to boot clear. Youson drove over the bar with a fine chance from the side the goal. The half ended with no further score.

WAUGH IS HURT

Shortly after the start of the second half Waugh was laid out when he tried to charge De Costa while the goalie was in the act of clearing. He was revived after a few minutes. King was pulled up just outside the penalty line for charging Wagland, but Boyd's low shot was wide. Stewart, Burns and Youson combined nicely to take the ball right through the Saints' defence, but the first mentioned missed the net completely with only the goalie to beat.

At this stage the Saints scored what proved to be the winning counter. They forced a corner off Watt. Stephen centred and the ball was passed back to Kulai, and the centre-half picked the top corner with a fast drive. Soon after Waugh was knocked out for the second time in another attempt to charge De Costa. He rallied after a few minutes, and resumed his position. Wagland took a pass from Youson and tricked through, but failed to get his shot away with an open net facing him. When they both went after a ball King and Burns were knocked out, and the latter was packed from the field to be replaced by Telfer.

FINE OPPORTUNITY

Victoria's finest chance to even the score came just before the final whistle when Telfer had only to tap the ball into the net from a few feet out, but drove it miles over the bar. Price was substituted for Morgan and Wagland moved over to outside left. Victoria continued to force matters, but the Saints kept their goal clear until the final whistle.

A. Davies refereed.

The teams follow:

St. Andrews—Strong; Carter, King, McNeill, Kulai, Morley; Stephen, Manson, Waugh, Surtees, Munro. Substitutes, Bruce, Alcock and Rabbit.

Victoria—De Costa; Joe Watt, Gibbons; Viggers, Body, Peers; Youson, Stewart, Burns, Wagland, Morgan. Substitutes, Telfer and Price.

In the only match played Saturday in the Victoria and District Football League, the Jokers defeated the North Ward eleven 5 to 2 at the Heywood Avenue grounds. The feature of the match was the scoring of all five Jokers' goals by Davidson, centre-forward. Fish and Simmons netted the counters for the Wards.

"Scotty" Dowds refereed.

Jokers — Stofer; Margison, Cann; Rogers, Rivers, Speller; Murray, Sage, Davison, Viggers and Collins.

In the Junior League the Jokers and Royal Oak advanced to the final of the Lower Island Cup Saturday. The Jokers defeated James Island 2 to 1, while Royal Oak won from Esquimalt 3 to 0.

Fontaine Knocked Out By Australian

London, Nov. 21.—Del Fontaine, Winnipeg middleweight boxer, was knocked out in the second round of his bout yesterday evening with Leo Bandias, an Australian.

Hamilton Pressed To Score Victory Over Sarnia Squad

DO OR DIE PLAY FAILS AT FINISH

Turville's Great Kicking Saves Hamilton; Sprague Scores Brilliant Touchdown

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 21.—Hamilton Tigers pointed today toward the eastern Canada football final with a faded hope that the intercollegiate champions of the University of Toronto carry less ammunition than Sarnia's Imperials.

The Jungle Kings took all the dynamite Imperials were able to explode on a sodden, snowy gridiron here Saturday and staggered away after the excitement, battered not a little with a 15 to 11 victory.

The Imperials waded into the Tiger tank brigade with considerable success in every period. With three minutes of the game remaining, they crashed this Bengal bulwark on its own thirty-five yard line and batted down Frank Turville's attempted punt.

The ball bounded past Turville's ear, rolled to Hamilton's eleven-yard line and Imperials fell on it in a heap. They needed a touchdown to win. A plunge failed to gain an inch and an over-anxious Sarnia lineman was called offside. It was second down twenty-one yards out.

Little Alex. Hayes, slim Imperial quarter, then called his "win-all, lose-all" play—a forward pass. If it succeeded it meant victory. And if it failed Imperials lost possession on the ruling governing passes inside the twenty-five-yard line. Rocky Parsaca threw, Big Glenn Small, Tiger flying wing, knocked it down, and the threat was ended.

TIGERS IN LEAD

Two brilliant dashes in the first quarter gave Hamilton a commanding lead over the O.R.F.U. champions. Turville made the first and Gardner skirted an end two plays later for the first touchdown.

Dave Sprague, giant middle wing, got the second alone. He burst through the Imperial line and legged it sixty yards over the line leaving a trail of beaten tacklers in the wake of his pounding boots.

Stirling kicked a single for Sarnia to leave the count at 10 to 1 as the quarter ended. They pulled up to a threatening position in the second quarter by piling through and downing Turville on his goal-line as the Hamilton punter momentarily fumbled a low snap. Hayes sneaked over for a touchdown.

SIMPSON SCORES

It was the first major score marked up against the Bengals this season and they wiped out its count without loss of time. As Stirling grappled with a poorly-snapped ball on his thirty-five-yard line, Jimmy Simpson, Tiger outside, got his toe on it. Simpson dribbled it over the Sarnia line and fell on it for a touchdown.

The Tiger line gave way again in the third quarter as Imperial marched upfield. From the Hamilton forty Stirling hoisted a high punt to Gardner who dropped the catch two yards out. Speers fell on the ball for Sarnia as the third quarter ended and Norm Perry went over on the first play in the last period.

But that was all. Turville's good kicking kept the Imperials at bay for nearly all the rest of the game and Parsaca's incompleted pass near time was the dying challenge.

Baldy Northcott broke the tie in overtime with a close range shot, and Glen Brydson put the home team two to the front with a neat goal on Trottier's pass. Northcott went through the Americans' defence alone for another goal, unassisted. Dave Trottier gave Maroons an early lead when he beat Worters in the first period on a double assist from Plaxton nad Conacher. George Patterson evened it up in the third period on a double assist from Sheppard and Convey. Maroons asserted their superiority in the overtime with three smart goals. Fractional Losses Recorded In Wheat As Buying Dwindles

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—European buyers of Canadian wheat paused in their purchases to-day and, despite firm Liverpool quotations, prices in the local pit sagged fractionally. Opening with a flash of strength, values gradually fell away to close ⅝ to ¾ cent lower for the session.

November closed at 47⅛, December at 45½, May at 49⅝ and July 50⅞.

Trading was on a light scale throughout and operations revealed little of an interesting character. Export over the week-end was confined to a few odd lot purchases.

Statistics covering the past week were not considered encouraging. World shipments of wheat declined to 10,716,000 bushels from 14,129,000 the previous week.

North America's share of world shipment totaled 6,933,000 bushels compared with 9,260,000 the previous week. The Armistice Day holiday was a factor in the smaller movement, however.

Exporters and shippers were in the market for top grades of cash wheat at spreads ¼ cent better than the previous close. Coarse grains were dull.

New wheat movement from farms in western Canada to country elevators as been decreasing slowly and deliveries Saturday totaled 1,071,000 bushels, compared with 870,000 bushels on the same day last year.

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg Nov. 21.—Wheat — The local wheat market experienced a dull featureless session to-day. Indications of any export business were absent and nothing could be confirmed as worked over the week-end or this morning, although it was understood that small business was going on at seaboard. With the absence of business and outside support the market turned draggy and after opening fractionally higher prices sagged away to nearly 1 cent under the close on Saturday.

In the local cash market there was a good shipping demand for the straight grades, but only a small business passing as buying is difficult.

The demand for cash wheat appears to be more of a warehouse than a merchandizing proposition, as storage rates in the east are said to be cheap. Vancouver premiums are increasing and Coast exporters report they are experiencing difficulty in getting their requirements as Alberta farmers are showing a strong tendency to hold their grain for higher prices.

Coarse grains—These markets were extremely quiet to-day with no business or outside support.

Oats closed ⅞ lower to unchanged, barley ⅛ higher to ¼ lower and rye ¼ higher to ⅛ lower. Flax closing prices ¼ off to ⅜ higher.

Liverpool due ½ to ⅝ lower on Winnipeg.

CHICAGO

(By Logan & Bryan)

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Wheat—An easy undertone again dominated the wheat market, with scattered liquidation in the December in evidence. Open interest in December Saturday decreased 2,536,000 bushels, with total of 53,162,000. Foreign news early was somewhat bullish with unfavorable reports from Russia, statements that wheat supplies in the Balkans were light with a reduction in import duties possible, while the Argentine news was less favorable. However, Buenos Aires was one cent lower at midday after having been relatively firm for several days, and this caused some selling here and also at Liverpool.

Weekly statistics were regarded as bullish abroad. World shipments were 10,716,000 bushels and on passage stocks decreased 344,000 bushels. North American clearances were 6,933,000 bushels. According to Broomhall, importing countries have booked all the liner space available for wheat from Montreal this season and are bidding for liner room out of St. Johns for December loading. It was thought the final government estimate of winter wheat acreage would show a much greater decrease than indicated by private forecasts owing to the unfavorable fall season in the southwest and west.

Corn—Little lower in sympathy with wheat and there was also scattered liquidation in December. Shipping trade slow with country bookings light. Present prices are not attractive to country owners. Primary arrivals, 561,000 vs. 630,000 a year ago. Weather favorable. Visible decreased 500,000 bushels for the week. Export bids still out of line.

Oats—Trade quiet and price changes small. The cash demand was moderate and receipts continue light. Visible decreased 542,000 bushels.

Rye—Prices sold off a little with wheat. Visible decreased 103,000 bushels.

C.P.R. UP 3-8 AT MONTREAL

Canadian Press

Montreal, Nov. 21.—Few changes resulted in late trading on Montreal Stock Exchange to-day. Losses were predominant in the list, although several of the market leaders managed to hold on to small gains scored earlier.

Canadian Pacific finished ⅜ higher at 15⅜. Brazilian moved up ¼ to 9⅜. International Nickel made a late appearance at 9¾, off ¼, where it closed. Montreal Power reduced an early loss slightly, closing at 33⅝, down ⅛. Shawinigan at 11 and National Breweries at 16 each eased ¼. Canadian Car preferred was off ½ at 13. Steel of Canada picked up ⅜ at 16½, while Brock Silk advanced ½ to 5.

An unusual number of stocks registered gains and losses of a point or more. Charles Gurd at 8, Canadian Bronze at 18 and National Breweries preferred at 28 closed a point higher. Winnipeg Electric, which has been inactive for some time, came out at 8, off 12 points from the last sale in September. Canadian Bank of Commerce yielded three points to 140.

TORONTO MINES RECOVER LITTLE

Canadian Press

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Their technical position weakened by the advances registered in the last three sessions, stocks sold off this afternoon on the Standard Mining Exchange, but most of them recovered part of their losses before the close.

McIntyre Porcupine was again the big trader to-day, closing at 23.75 for a net gain of 30. Holling and Dome were steadier. Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves traded in large volume and both held most of the gains achieved last Friday and Saturday. Lake Shore closed about 15 up for the day.

B.C. Pioneer and several of the cheaper Ontario and Quebec gold stocks were stronger. Howey at 59 was up 2, and Siscoe and San Antonio were up 1 each.

Base metal shares with exception of Noranda were not active. In the silver group Eldorado closed with a small loss. The oil shares were irregular.

GOLDS FAVORED AT VANCOUVER

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Nov. 21.—Moving in line with the Ontario gold stocks, Pioneer Gold, Leader of the active mining stocks in British Columbia, rose to $4.60 in sales during the forenoon session of the Vancouver Stock Exchange to-day.

The fact that the usual success is attending the operations at the Bridge River property and that gold stocks are in great demand in the east because of the exchange situation gave a new impetus to the B.C. security here and in the east.

Bralorne, adjoining Pioneer, was unchanged at 65 cents. Reno Gold, about ready to complete the new mill, held at 57 cents, and Premier Gold stood solidly at 59½ cents.

There was little action in the oils. Interest has waned with production in Turner Valley, but brokerage circles reflect a widespread opinion that other production in western Canada will revive interest in the oil group.

Sales this morning were:

Oils—1,800 A.P. Consolidated at 8; 1,000 Amalgamated at 2½; 2,000 Sterling Pacific at 12.

Mines—100 Bralorne at 64, 525 at 65; 3,000 Bridge River Con. at 4¼; 1,000 Crow's Nest at 1; 10,000 George River at 2½; 500 Noble Five at 3½; 200 Pend Oreille at 65½; 100 Pioneer Gold at 446, 20 at 445, 225 at 450; 200 at 460, 200 at 465; 200 Premier Gold at 59½; 2,100 Reno Gold at 57.

Canadian Press

New York, Nov. 21.—Selling oozed through the stock market to-day to give the list a rather soggy appearance.

The market was very dull, and selling was in insufficient volume to indicate a decided trend. The market opened a little higher, but the radio consent decree brought considerable selling into Radio Corporation; and with steel production showing some slackening, sentiment was easily dampened.

Stocks averaged moderately lower toward the close. Losses of about a point were the rule in such issues as Santa Fe, Allied Chemical, Union Pacific, Drug and American Tobacco B, while American Telephone, U.S. Steel, Case, General Electric, Harvester and American Can. were fractionally off. Radio lost more than a point. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

The selling of Radio was regarded as partly for short account. Wall Street, in the main, had been expecting the consent decree, under which General Electric and Westinghouse Electric will dispose of their holdings of Radio Corporation stock, and the patent pooling arrangement will be discontinued.

Most of the week-end surveys of investment services stressed the impending war debt controversy as injecting an element of uncertainty.

TORONTO STOCK GAINS SLIGHT

Canadian Press

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Toronto stock exchange continued its uncertain course to-day, but prices held remarkably firm and even made some slight gains.

C.P.R. picked up a little to close with a fractional gain and the other interlisted shares were strong. Brazilian at 9⅜. Nickel at 9¾. Smelters at 68.

Oil shares were quiet and little changed, but some buying appeared in the banking stocks. Toronto jumped two points and good gains were registered by commerce and Imperial.

In the utilities Bell Telephone bought out of its range on the down side, selling before the close at 96¾. Consumers Gas was unchanged and Shawinigan lost ¾.

In the steel and allied group Pressed Metals, at 16½, touched a new high for the movement, but Standard Steel registered a small loss. Food stocks maintained a good tone with Dominion Stores, Loblaw A and Canadian Canners first all showing gains, the latter a pick-up of two points.

More Teamwork Needed By Parents

Dorothy Dix

Urges Presenting United Front to Children

As Rare as Hen's Teeth Are the Father and Mother Who Agree Upon a Theory of Child-Rearing — Each Constantly Flouts the Other's Efforts at Discipline, and in the End the Child Respects Neither Parent

THE PLACE where teamwork is more needed than anywhere else in the world is in the home, and yet there is where it is seldomest found. Rare, indeed, is the family in which the husband and wife have found the same ideas and ideals and agree upon a settled plan of action and bend their united energies and intelligence to carrying it out. And especially rare—oh, rare as hens' teeth or Kohinoor diamonds—are the father and mother who agree upon a theory of child-rearing.

As a general thing they take opposite sides on the question. If the mother is lenient the father is stern. If the father believes in discipline, the mother thinks it is cruel to make poor little children behave themselves. If mother tries to bring up her children by the Baby Book, father pooh-poohs it and feeds the youngsters in lollypops and lets them stay up as long as they like at night.

If mother thinks that Mamie should have dates and go to parties, father puts his foot down and forbids it and raises ructions every time a boy comes to the house. If mother thinks the boys should have sport cars and go to college and take up some temperamental career instead of getting a job and going to work in father's shop, father tells them how he started to work at fourteen and never had a pair of trousers that didn't have a patch on them.

Worse still, the parents stage their fights over their different theories of child-rearing in Johnny's and Mamie's presence, and it is not long before the clever youngsters discover that they can play off Papa against Mamma and escape any authority at all. For how is mother to form habits of neatness and order and drill them in good manners when father always interferes every time she corrects one of them, and says: "Oh, don't worry the poor child with that foolishness. He'll know how to behave when he is grown."

And how can father teach his children obedience and respect for law and order when mother calls him a tyrant and makes a scene whenever he attempts to control them?

Each nullifies all that the other tries to do. Each undoes the work of the other. Each destroys the authority of the other, and the result is that the house divided against itself falls.

How often we see fathers frustrated in their efforts to make strong, worth-while men of their sons by the boys' mothers who pamper and spoil them and make weaklings out of them, who slip them the money their fathers refuse them for their dissipations and who make loafers out of them by insisting that Arthur is too delicate to work and Adolphus is too artistic for the grocery business and that their father is cruel to insist upon their settling down to regular labor like ordinary lads.

And how many men we see helpless to protect their daughters from the fate they are bringing upon themselves because their mothers connive with the girls in deceiving their fathers about the boys they go out with and the places they go to and how late they stay out at night.

And how many mothers do we see laboring in vain to make ladies and gentlemen of their children and ground them in the decencies of conduct because their fathers tacitly encourage hoodlumism in the youngsters and have some strange optimistic belief that young devils turn into pin-feathered angels when they are grown. A faith which, alas, is given the lie by all the myriads of selfish, self-centred, undisciplined wild girls and boys who are bringing their parents' grey hair in sorrow to the grave.

Nor is this lack of teamwork in rearing their children the only mistake that parents make. Only too often each criticizes and ridicules the other to the children. It is a common thing to hear a man call his wife a fool in his children's hearing and to deride her opinions and tell her she doesn't know what she is talking about. Or to accuse her of being silly and sentimental and having no judgment or of being behind the times and ignorant or extravagant or frivolous. Sometimes even, if he is jealous, of being flirtatious.

And it is equally common to hear a woman reproach her husband with being cruel when he tries to correct the children or of his having forgotten his own youth and of wanting to deny the children every pleasure. Sometimes she even goes so far as to accuse him of not loving his youngsters. Nor does she scruple from criticizing him to his children and letting them see that she thinks he is a failure because he doesn't make more money.

Now what these fathers and mothers overlook in doing this, is that every child takes its opinion of its father and mother from the other, and when one sees that its father regards its mother as a poor, silly, brainless creature whose opinions are of no value, why he rates her that way too. And when the child observes that its mother has neither respect nor admiration for its father it adopts the same attitude toward him.

Then, when the time comes when it is all important that the children should listen to their fathers' advice and be guided by their mothers, they find that they have no authority with them. Each has killed the other's influence.

In these times it is difficult enough to rear children so that they will be an honor and not a grief to their parents. This can only be accomplished by a father and a mother working together shoulder to shoulder and by presenting a united front to the rebellious youngsters. So they should discuss their differences in private and exalt each other before the children.

It takes teamwork to manage even a modern baby. No father or mother alone is equal to the task.

Exploring South America

VI—ARGENTINA

Montivideo proves to be just as fine a city as we have heard it was, and we are glad we chose to spend our week-end here. It has a population, by the latest figures, of 450,000, and it is the capital of Uruguay.

A "cowboy" of Argentina mounts his horse

Uruguay is a small country but it is progressive. Much public money is spent for schools, and the people take pride in the education which they give to their children.

Uruguay has a fine climate, and is one of the few very healthful countries in South America. We should like to spend more time in pleasant Montivideo, but we must be on our way. We have much more ground to cover this week.

Next we fly across a very wide river, the Rio de la Plata—or the "River Plate," as we may call it. At the place where it empties into the ocean, this river measures 143 miles from side to side!

On the other side of the river we reach Argentina and pause at Buenos Aires. The name of this city means "Good Airs."

Argentina is a Spanish-speaking country, but in Buenos Aires we find persons who can talk English; and they seem glad to answer our questions.

"Buenos Aires," says one of them, "covers seventy-five square miles of ground, and contains more than 2,000,000 people. It is the largest city in South America."

"Yes, we are proud of our city. It is the capital of our country, and we think it compares well with any city in Europe or North America."

After looking at the public buildings, at the theatres and broad streets, we decide that the people have reason to be proud of Buenos Aires.

Another man tells us about the country in general.

"Argentina," he says, "has more miles of railroad than all other countries in South America combined. Our greatest industries are cattle raising, sheep raising and meat packing. In a single year we have exported more than half a million tons of beef! We also raise great crops of wheat, and we have huge mills to turn the wheat into flour."

Leaving Buenos Aires, we fly west across northern Argentina. Late in the afternoon we make a landing on a ranch, and arrange to stay overnight. Fifteen thousand cattle and 9,000 sheep roam about this ranch. They are watched over by "gauchos"—or cowboys, we might say. We observe one of these cowboys—dressed in his best outfit—mounting a horse.

HERE is a motor car value without precedent in Victoria. A car of fine quality and spotless appearance . . . a car that should sell for almost double what we are asking! The most convincing proof of this super bargain is to see the car itself. Examine it carefully—drive it—and we are content to leave the rest to your own judgment. This phenomenal value is offered simply because we are clearing our entire stock at a huge sacrifice.

Subdued Colors for Couch-bed Covers

Sateen and chintz in dark colorings make attractive covers for the couch-bed that serves as a couch by day and a bed at night. For the college dormitory room, these materials have been designed with college scenes and pennants. Others have patterns made up of old maps, colonial scenes or pictures of western history. The sturdy texture of these fabrics makes them excellent for a student's room.

A device, which shuffles and deals bridge hands has been exhibited. Now if somebody would just think up some machine for playing the hands!

Do You Want To Be a Pilot?

Try These Ten Physical Tests

Try stepping on a chair five times in fifteen seconds as the pilot at left is doing under the scrutiny of Dr. E. H. Padden. If you feel no "perceptible effect of exertion," perhaps you'll make a good aviator.

If you have aspirations to become the pilot of a coast to coast passenger transport airplane, you had better put yourself through ten physical tests before you apply for the job.

An interesting series of experiments is being conducted for pilots on United Air Lines before they are qualified for their jobs. Dr. E. H. Padden, flight surgeon in charge of the tests, explains them.

"Try standing on one foot with the other bent backwards at right angles from the knee," he says. "Close your eyes and remain in that position without falling. You'll find you'll have a hard time doing it.

"This is only one of the ten tests given prospective pilots. Some of the remainder are much harder."

Following are the other nine:

Extend both hands, palms down, close both eyes and keep your hands steady without trembling.

EXTRAVANGANZA WILL BE GIVEN

A colorful musical extravaganza, in the form of a Christmas pantomime, will be presented by the Victoria Operatic Society at the Royal Victoria Theatre on December 26 and 27, it was announced on Saturday. The revue will take the place of Humperdinck's opera "Hansel and Gretel," which has been postponed until later in the season.

The extravaganza will be divided into five scenes, which will be entitled "The Magic Chest," "The Feast of Bacchus," "A Medieval Christmas Eve," "An Oriental Market" and "A Vikoroski Night Club."

Practices for the revue will commence to-morrow evening in the society headquarters on Rockland Avenue. The cast will be a large one and something new is promised in singing and dancing and magnificence of scenery and costuming.

BRUCE FARRIS TAKES HOLIDAY

Great Central Lumberman Goes to Honolulu While Island Mill Is Closed Down

For the next two months, Bruce M. Farris, vice-president of Great Central Sawmills, will bask in the sunshine of the Hawaiian group and his only interest in lumber during that time will be in the surfboards at Waikiki Beach.

He was at the Empress Hotel on Saturday with Mrs. Farris prior to sailing by the liner Empress of Japan later in the day for Honolulu.

"We are taking a holiday during the slack season," said Mr. Farris. "The mill at Great Central is closed down for a month, but it will be in operation again before I return. I expect to be back in a couple of months."

NOTES FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

British Debaters Appear Tuesday; Education Week To Be Observed

By JACK STANTON

Vancouver, Nov. 21.—"Resolved that threshed out to-morrow evening at Hotel Vancouver in a debate between U.B.C. debaters and a visiting British team. Neil Parry of Victoria and Vic Dryer, Vancouver, will represent the local university, and are supporting the affirmative.

On the British team, and arguing for the negative, are Hector McNeil of the University of Glasgow and Ivor Jones from a Welsh college.

Neil Perry is a former Victoria College students now taking honors in economics. He was prominent in debating circles both at Victoria High School and at the college, while during his first year at U.B.C. he was chosen as an international debater. Perry's seconder, Vic Dryer, is also an experienced public speaker.

Among those entertainments open to students on the campus are regular recitals sponsored by the musical society. The society, a student organization, arranges three or four such programmes each term, the most recent having been given Thursday noon.

During "education week," November 20 to 26, the university will be open to the public Tuesday, November 22 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Lectures and laboratories will be continued as usual. Visitors will only be admitted to the library, laboratories and museum, not to lectures.

One cannot blame Mr. Insull for wanting to stay in Greece, with the Christmas shopping coming on, income taxes to be figured out after the first of the year, and all that.

Statistics indicate the average person will have three colds between now and March. But if you have only two, don't be disappointed.

RAINS ISOLATE WEST COAST

Wires Washed Out, Shutting Off 500 From World For Week

Nearly 500 persons living in the Port Renfrew district on the west coast of Vancouver Island have been isolated from the world for the last week, according to R. S. Gallop, engineer and surveyor, who reached Victoria Saturday from beyond Jordan River.

"Rains on the west coast have been so torrential during the last week or two that everything moveable has been washed out, including the only government telegraph line that runs in the round-about way to Victoria by going north through the Alberni district," said Mr. Gallop. "The rains have so swollen the streams that linemen have been unable to get across to repair the communication line.

"The Dominion government, as an economy move, removed the insulators from the trees of the short line running direct south to Victoria and cut down its patrolmen, with the result there is no communication now by that route."

Mr. Gallop said that J. Mutter, as representative of the people of the west coast is preparing a protest to the government.

Langford

The Langford branch of the Girls' Auxiliary held a silver tea on Saturday at the Women's Institute Hall. Mrs. E. H. Phipps, leader, and Miss Stella M. Hincks, local president, welcomed the visitors. Knitted and fancywork was sold by Miss Sheena Smith. Tea tables were decorated with vases of bronze chrysanthemums and the waitresses were Elizabeth Welch, Margaret Smedley, Flossie Driver, Adele Yates and Eileen Hincks. Annette and Josephine Seabrook and Jean Clarke helped in the kitchen. Mrs. Phipps spoke on the objects of the Girls' Auxiliary and Mrs. Llewellyn Thomas of Victoria gave an interesting account of the moving picture industry and the duties of the provincial censorship.

A children's party was held on Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Hamill, Goldstream Road, in honor of her son Frank's seven birthday. After games tea was served at a table decorated with pink and green and centred with a large iced cake with seven candles. The little guests were: Rosamary and Geoffrey Bullen, Rodney and Theodore Bayles, Jackie Le Quesne, Arthur McIntosh, Mervyn Brown, Oswald and Claude Hincks, Mary and Frank Hamill.
